Chapter 1 : Blessings for the Fast Paced and Cyberspaced (April edition) | Open Library

"A blessing is a 'yes' to goodness, to grace, to an ultimately friendly universe. Blessings connect us to the wellspring of our very being," writes William John Fitzgerald, a "retired" pastor and author of eight previous books including Cranes. This wonder-filled book helps us see what the Celts.

If life and its rushed pace and many stresses have made it difficult for you to feel like rejoicing, then perhaps now is a good time to refocus on what matters most. The most common cause of turbulence is a sudden change in air movement causing the aircraft to pitch, yaw, and roll. While planes are built to withstand far greater turbulence than anything you would encounter on a regular flight, it still may be disconcerting to passengers. What do you suppose pilots do when they encounter turbulence? A student pilot may think that increasing speed is a good strategy because it will get them through the turbulence faster. But that may be the wrong thing to do. Professional pilots understand that there is an optimum turbulence penetration speed that will minimize the negative effects of turbulence. And most of the time that would mean to reduce your speed. The same principle applies also to speed bumps on a road. Therefore, it is good advice to slow down a little, steady the course, and focus on the essentials when experiencing adverse conditions. The Pace of Modern Life One of the characteristics of modern life seems to be that we are moving at an ever-increasing rate, regardless of turbulence or obstacles. We all can think up a list of tasks that will overwhelm our schedules. Some might even think that their self-worth depends on the length of their to-do list. The wise resist the temptation to get caught up in the frantic rush of everyday life. I think most of us intuitively understand how important the fundamentals are. It is just that we sometimes get distracted by so many things that seem more enticing. Printed material, wide-ranging media sources, electronic tools and gadgets—all helpful if used properly—can become hurtful diversions or heartless chambers of isolation. Yet amidst the multitude of voices and choices, the humble Man of Galilee stands with hands outstretched, waiting. His is a simple message: It is so easy for the basic gospel message to get lost amidst the deluge of information that hits us from all sides. The holy scriptures and the spoken word of the living prophets give emphasis to the fundamental principles and doctrines of the gospel. The reason we return to these foundational principles, to the pure doctrines, is because they are the gateway to truths of profound meaning. Four Key Relationships As we turn to our Heavenly Father and seek His wisdom regarding the things that matter most, we learn over and over again the importance of four key relationships: As we evaluate our own lives with a willing mind, we will see where we have drifted from the more excellent way. The eyes of our understanding will be opened, and we will recognize what needs to be done to purify our heart and refocus our life. First, our relationship with God is most sacred and vital. We are His spirit children. He is our Father. He desires our happiness. As we seek Him, as we learn of His Son, Jesus Christ, as we open our hearts to the influence of the Holy Spirit, our lives become more stable and secure. To strengthen our relationship with God, we need some meaningful time alone with Him. Quietly focusing on daily personal prayer and scripture study, always aiming to be worthy of a current temple recommend—these will be some wise investments of our time and efforts to draw closer to our Heavenly Father. Let us heed the invitation in Psalms: Our second key relationship is with our families. We build deep and loving family relationships by doing simple things together, like family dinner and family home evening and by just having fun together. In family relationships love is really spelled t-i-m-e, time. Taking time for each other is the key for harmony at home. We talk with, rather than about, each other. We learn from each other, and we appreciate our differences as well as our commonalities. We establish a divine bond with each other as we approach God together through family prayer, gospel study, and Sunday worship. The third key relationship we have is with our fellowman. We build this relationship one person at a time—by being sensitive to the needs of others, serving them, and giving of our time and talents. And so each week she watched for people who looked troubled or discouraged, and she spent time with them, listening. What a blessing she was in the lives of so many people. The fourth key relationship is with ourselves. It may seem odd to think of having a relationship with ourselves, but we do. They criticize and belittle themselves all day long until they begin to hate themselves. May I suggest that you reduce the rush and take a little extra time to get to know yourself better. Learn to see yourself as Heavenly Father sees youâ€”as His precious daughter or son with divine potential. Strength in Simplicity Strength comes not from frantic activity but from being settled on a firm foundation of truth and light. It comes from placing our attention and efforts on the basics of the restored gospel of Jesus Christ. It comes from paying attention to the divine things that matter most. Let us simplify our lives a little. Let us make the changes necessary to refocus our lives on the sublime beauty of the simple, humble path of Christian discipleshipâ€”the path that leads always toward a life of meaning, gladness, and peace.

WhatsApp Devotion has always been a part of our daily lives. The faith in some higher power is what keeps us grounded in the brightest moments and keep us going in the darkest of times. But in our fast-paced lives today, devotion has somehow lost its priority. This changes when you turn towards technology because technology has an answer for everything. Like anything else, there are apps that would allow you to pray anytime, anywhere. It provides you with daily devotions; a new one each day. If you have more time to spare, you could listen to the most recent devotions on the broadcast. The simple interface keeps things simple for you too. You could view the devotions by sorting them into categories and also have the feature to share them on Facebook. Being closer to God becomes far easier with this app in your phone. The best part- it is free. Every day, the app brings one new prayer to your notice. What makes this unique from other apps is the variety of things you could do with the prayer. For instance, you could download your favorite prayers, set alarms to pray, add images and PDFs to the prayers so that they look more appealing. The cloud-support also allows you to export and import the prayers via Dropbox. Furthermore, you could also select specific prayer categories for yourself and view prayers for them only. Overall, this app would make your praying sessions more interesting and simple. The application is simple and minimalistic in its functionality. It only aims at setting and serving reminders for you to pray. But since it has the only function, it does that with perfection. The prompt reminders cover up your screen space while reminding you to pray even when you are too lazy to care. Missing your prayers is not an option when you are using this app. Best Productivity Apps 4 Prayer Prompter Even the best of us cannot always focus on our prayers because distractions get us all. Prayer Prompter is a great app that lets you reminded and focused upon your prayers. Apart from prompting you to pray more, it also teaches you the basic of praying and suggests topics to pray about. Like a divine coach, delivered to you by the Lord. However, this ends with Echo. Echo is a simple praying app that takes care of all your prayers in one place, which could be sorted and categorized as per your will. Even the interface of the app is simple and devoid of any flashy distractions. Prayers and Blessings Daily is an app that provides you prayers daily, so that your life is filled with the power of faith. But, what makes it so special is its ability to share scriptures on the Internet. Whether it I Facebook, Twitter or Instagram, you could share the thoughts that made your day more devotional with your friends and family. So, it is cool and noble at the same time. Android So you have total 6 apps that will help you to pray anytime anywhere and also helps you to remind about it. So pick up your iPhone or Android device and install the desired app.

Instapaper x Your website cost a small fortune to build, and everything looks fantastic. All the tools work as they should, internal links work, content is all set and your online business is ready to go. Or so it seems. Every hyperlink may be in place and every graphic perfect but before you venture forth for one more day of cyber-business as usual, check to be sure that you are not the weakest link in your online business. Just like the now defunct game show which will unceremoniously cast you out of the game for hemming and hawing, so it is with the fast paced world of e-commerce. If you want to succeed, you must arrive prepared. The fact is that we can all be our own worst enemy especially when the unexpected arises. So now is the time to arm yourself with the tools to succeed and become the power link in your business building campaign. Consider the following situations before they arise: Yes, indeed, even too much of a good thing too fast can overwhelm you and put your business into a downslide. Be prepared to say no when you have reached your capacity. Better yet, start a waiting list. This little technique will make you more popular, not less, and give you the breathing room you need to grow at a stable pace. Every business has an ebb and flow. Be prepared for it. The key is not to panic. Every business has months that are fast paced, months that are average, and months that are slow. The numbers may be different, but speed is likely to be about the same. During the slow months either count your blessings and take a vacation or use the time to improve your own business model. The Terminally Grouchy Customer. We all have them. Keep in mind that some people will always find a reason to complain, to be angry, or to be difficult. Make the logical decisions now about which terminally grouchy customers might be worth keeping, which might not be worth keeping, and how you will handle the situation with each. Seek support at the point of impact from someone with business savvy and a nurturing touch. Then forgive yourself, promise to do better next time, and most importantly, move on. Those that hold on to their mistakes will eventually lose. Dave Shannon is the owner of VisitorsCentral. What are the different types of fasting? Usually, fasting is the abstaining of food for a certain period of time. There are different types of fasting in the Bible, however, and not all of them involve food. Biblical fasting is often closely linked to repentance, as in the examples of David, the nation of Israel, and the city of Nineveh. Fasting is also related to passionate prayer, as in the examples of King Jehoshaphat and Queen Esther. Biblical fasting comes from a humble heart seeking God Isaiah John MacArthur comments on Isaiah Hypocritical fasting resulted in contention, quarreling, and pretense, excluding the possibility of genuine prayer to God. Fasting consisted of more than just an outward ritual and a mock repentance, it involved penitence over sin and consequent humility, disconnecting from sin and oppression of others, feeding the hungry, and acting humanely toward those in need. The Lord defeated their enemies, and the men of Judah blessed the Lord 2 Chronicles After the Babylonian Captivity, the people returning to Jerusalem prayed and fasted, asking God for His protection on their journey Ezra 8: Another type of biblical fasting is the partial fast. The prophet Daniel spent three weeks fasting from certain foods. Today, many Christians follow this example and abstain from certain foods or activities for a short time, looking to the Lord for their comfort and strength. Also mentioned in the Bible is the absolute fast, or the full fast, where no food or water is consumed. The murderous Saul encountered Jesus in His glory on the road to Damascus. Immediately following that time of blindness and fasting, Saul dedicated his life to preaching Jesus Christ. In the cases of Esther and Saul, the absolute fast only lasted three days. However, Moses and Elijah took part in miraculous, forty-day absolute fasts. When Moses met God on the mountaintop to receive the tablets of stone, he ate no bread and drank no water Deuteronomy 9: And, after Elijah defeated the prophets of Baal on Mt. Carmel, infuriating Queen Jezebel, Elijah fled for his life and spent forty days of fasting in the wilderness 1 Kings The Bible also mentions a sexual fast, although not by that name. Sinai, and part of their preparation was to abstain from sexual relations for three days. And in 1 Corinthians 7: This is what sets apart biblical fasting from other religious and cultural practices around the world.
