As he grew up he would listen to blues, gospel, jazz, folk or country music. As he started performing he declared: Those guys were the inspiration that got me going. The next year he was already forming his band "The Sputniks", a skiffle group. In they were playing in some local cinemas and Morrison was naturally in charge of most of the singing. During the next teen years he was in a few other bands. At fourteen he decides to learn how to ply the saxophone after hearing Jimmy Giuffre playing it on "The Train and The River". After that they took Wesley Black as pianist and came up with another band name, "the Monarchs. Later, when he was only 17 of age he toured Europe with the band, now "the International Monarchs". The artist was brought to international attention when he began performing with "The roots of Them". They performed at the Maritime club for a while. The band later signed a two-year contract with Decca Records. While under contract Them released two albums and ten singles. Three of the singles became chart hits: After that, the song Gloria was highly appreciated by fans and musicians and several cove versions were released by Patti Smith, the Doors, Shadows of Knight, Jimi Hendrix and other artists whose free piano sheets are available here. In "Van the Man" signed with Bang Records. By a new album was released. He was not happy with the result and said that he had a different concept of what it should have sounded like. In the present it is the fourth most requested song of DJs in the Unites States. Astral Weeks came out in as an "a mystical song cycle". It is described as hypnotic, meditative.
