

Chapter 1 : How Strange It Seems | Brent Cash | Free Internet Radio | Slacker Radio

"Michael Hoberman's How Strange It Seems is a well-written and thoughtful contribution to New England ethnohistory. Hoberman does an excellent job of telling the individual stories. He describes his book as 'more impressionistic than exhaustive.' He is too modest.

Strange As It Seems began as a 15 minute radio program on March 22, It was broadcast over the Columbia Don Lee Coast radio network. The schedule was 3 nights a week, Sunday, Wednesday and Friday at 7: The sponsor was Ex-Lax. In late September the show changed to two shows per week, dropping the Sunday show. In late September the schedule changed again to Tuesday and Friday nights. A booklet of the Strange As It Seems stories was sponsored by Ex-Lax and given away as a free promotion of the radio program by writing to the station. The show was hosted by Gayne Whitman, produced and directed by Cyril Armbrister and the music was composed and directed by Felix Mills. Whitman had been the announcer on the Strange As It Seems movie shorts from - The programs included 2 or 3 segments of dramatized events in mini plays with dramatic, fanfare music interspersed in the show between segments. After the opening line, an Ex-Lax commercial would follow. Then 2 or 3 strange stories would be presented. Many of the programs were distributed on 16" 33 RPM records with one 15 minute show on each side. Many sources list at least 39 of these records with a total of 78 programs recorded. This run of the shows concluded at the end of January , after over shows. The show began again in January as a 15 minute once a week program, airing on Sunday afternoons at 3: The show ended at the end of December , with 53 shows in this run. There were 72 broadcasts of these half hour broadcasts. Havrilla was the announcer on the Stranger Than Fiction movie shorts beginning in and continuing in that role until the shorts were ended in The program had one final run in its original 15 minute format from Nov. There were 22 episodes aired in this run. In the newspaper story about the death of John Hix on June 6, , Ernest Hix stated there were over radio programs produced, indicating there were other shows than those so far identified. It contains the most complete and accurate version of this series in the best sound possible at the time of creation. An updated version will be issued if more episodes or better sounding ones become available. This is the Single Episode Page. The Certified Set includes extras not found here. This page is provided in case you want to sample the shows. Note that in many cases, file names have been modified from the original OTRR names to conform to archive. If you are interested in preserving old time radio, you may wish to join the Old Time Radio Researchers Group at Yahoo. Relax, listen, and enjoy! OTRR Certified Accurate -- A series that is Certified Accurate indicates that all the episodes are properly identified and labeled but that the series does not contain all known extant episodes. This certification level implies that all the files in the series are Certified Accurate but also indicates that the series is as complete as possible -- it includes all extant episodes.

Chapter 2 : How Strange It Seems lyrics - Edwin McCain original song - full version on Lyrics Freak

Brent Cash: How Strange It Seems AJ Ramirez. 18 Oct Cash's sumptuous recreation of sunshine symphonic pop from 40 years ago is very much a record that caters to quite specialized retro tastes.

Genre s real-life curiosities The Strange as It Seems syndicated comic strips were printed daily in newspapers from to They were originally created by John Hix. At its peak the strip was printed in 1, newspapers. The demise of multiple newspapers in cities and the changing taste of readers led to the strip ending in The cartoon strip was written and drawn by John Hix from until his health began to deteriorate in the early s and Dick Kirby began drawing the strip, although Hix continued to oversee and approve all content. John Hix died of myocarditis on June 6, which was also D-Day. His brother, Ernest Hix, took over producing the feature. The cartoons were drawn by Dick Kirby from to , then by Doug Heyes from to Hix had two young children at the time, Ernest Harmon Hix Jr. Hix continued to write the stories for the comics until , when she turned the work over to her son, Ernest Hix, Jr. He wrote and produced the strip with his wife Phyllis until when the feature went out of syndication. Radio show[edit] Strange as It Seems was a radio program of strange and unusual tales about fantastic people and events, based on the daily syndicated newspaper cartoon panels of John Hix of the same name. Strange as It Seems began as a minute radio program on March 22, It was broadcast over the Columbia â€” Don Lee Coast radio network. The schedule was 3 nights a week - Sunday, Wednesday and Friday at 7: In late September the show changed to two shows per week, dropping the Sunday show. In late September the schedule changed again to Tuesday and Friday nights. A booklet of the Strange as It Seems stories was sponsored by Ex-Lax and given away as a free promotion of the radio program by writing to the station. The show was hosted by Gayne Whitman , produced and directed by Cyril Armbrister and the music was composed and directed by Felix Mills. Whitman had been the announcer on the Strange as It Seems movie shorts from â€” The programs included two or three segments of dramatized events in mini plays with dramatic, fanfare music interspersed in the show between segments. After the opening line, an Ex-Lax commercial would follow. Then two or three strange stories would be presented. Many of the programs were distributed on 16" 33 RPM records with one 15 minute show on each side. Many sources list at least 39 of these records with a total of 78 programs recorded. This run of the shows concluded at the end of January , after over shows. The show began again in January as a minute once a week program, airing on Sunday afternoons at 3: The show ended at the end of December , with 53 shows in this run. The Strange as It Seems radio program was picked up as a minute network program on the Columbia Broadcasting System from August 17, to December 26, on Thursdays at 8: Havrilla was the announcer on the Stranger Than Fiction movie shorts beginning in and continuing in that role until the shorts were ended in Stranger Than Fiction was the successor to the Strange as It Seems movie shorts that ran from until There were 22 episodes aired in this run. In the newspaper story about the death of John Hix on June 6, , Ernest Hix stated there were over radio programs produced, indicating there were other shows than those so far identified. He first used the stage name of Alfred Whitman when he began acting in silent films in He later used the stage name Gayne Whitman , beginning in He was an American radio and film actor. On radio, he played the title role in Chandu the Magician and was an announcer on other programs. He appeared in films between and His wife was the former Estelle Allen. He was a highly successful composer-arranger-conductor during the Golden Age of Radio in the s and s. Mills created a "gadget band" with wild instruments for Donald Duck to direct on some episodes. Choosing to retire rather than fire a few band members during the Red Inquisition, he built a home in Morro Bay, California to pursue his favorite hobbies, sailing and slide photography. Mills died on April 5, at Morro Bay, California. His ancestors had been British loyalists during the Revolutionary War and immigrated to the Bahamas in the late s. His father, William Armbrister, married for a second time at the age of 76 to Eugenie Bode and Cyril was born of this marriage. His father died when Cyril was 12 and he and his mother moved to Canada. He later moved to Hollywood and became a director. He married the actress Frances Fintel and they split their time between California and the family plantation on Cat Island, Bahamas. Cyril died on September 18, in Nassau, Bahamas. He arrived in the United States as a small child, speaking no

English. He worked hard to perfect his English. He began his radio career as a baritone singer. In 1928, he recorded, "Tancuj, Tancuj," a well-known Slovak folk song. He also worked as an announcer on several other radio programs, including The Jack Benny Program in 1930 and the Paul Whiteman radio program. Havrilla worked at a number of New York-area radio stations as a news commentator, announcer, narrator, and host of musical programs. He died on December 7, in Englewood, New Jersey. Universal Studios responded by signing John Hix to a contract to create short films based on his cartoon strip Strange as It Seems. There were 39 short subjects released between August 22, and May 5, 1931, coming out on average about once per month. The shorts played in over 6,000 movie theaters. The first of these films was released on June 28, and came out about every 2 to 3 weeks. They were also filmed in black and white and were directed by Charles E. Columbia Studios brought back the Strange as It Seems shorts in 1932. CBS bundled 8 of these shorts in a package to their television affiliates in 1950. Books[edit] The first Strange as It Seems book was published in 1931 and reprinted many of the cartoons from the three-year run of the newspaper feature. In 1932, Eastern released a second volume. There was also a hardback written by Elsie Huber Hix in 1933 and a follow-up paperback. Each sold over 100,000 copies. She published two more paperbacks, with the final one published in 1935. Comic books[edit] Comic books were a natural medium for these cartoons. The first of these comic books appeared in 1932. Promotional comic books were created for Ex-Lax as a promotional giveaway on the radio program they sponsored and United Airlines as a handout for passengers to read on the flights. A series of comics began in 1933, with issues 2 through 9 being published. But by that fall, the promoters knew they needed to make changes. Their exhibit opened in February and was very popular. John Hix drew from his large collection of oddities for the Exhibition in the large building in the center of the Fun Zone. A series of the Odditoriums would eventually be created around the world. DeForest, embodying construction principles still in use. Her body was covered almost entirely with over 100 tattoos. There was always a friendly rivalry between Ripley and Hix in their various media offerings: Robert Ripley was 16 years older than John Hix so he had a head start based on his age. In 1934, Robert Ripley began publishing his cartoons in newspapers. John Hix began nationally syndicating his newspaper cartoons in 1935, ten years later. In May 1935, Ripley released his first movie shorts through Paramount Studios. Ripley was selected for an exhibit at the California Pacific International Exposition in 1935. Hix replaced him with an exhibit at the show in 1936. They also competed in book and comic book publishing as well.

Chapter 3 : Strange as It Seems - Wikipedia

"How Strange it Seems" By Edwin McCain. Our new desktop experience was built to be your music destination. Listen to official albums & more.

Chapter 4 : Brent Cash: How Strange It Seems - Music Streaming - Listen on Deezer

Part oral history, part ethnography, and part literary portrait, How Strange It Seems tells the story of this often overlooked group, tracing its patterns of settlement, economic activity, civic involvement, and religious life since the late 1800s.

Chapter 5 : Strange As It Seems | Old Time Radio

It's probably not a surprise that the swooping and slow orchestral arrangement that kicks off How Strange It Seems could be from some prime Jimmy Webb or Bacharach/David-written piece from the 60s -- or that Brent Cash's title for that first piece is "I Wish I Were a Song," which he sweetly and gently sings.

Chapter 6 : How Strange It Seems That - Democratic Underground

*How strange it seems to be me
If tomorrow I opened my eyes
And found myself somewhere else
I wonder who I'd be
I'm the house man at a place called the exit.*

DOWNLOAD PDF HOW STRANGE IT SEEMS

Chapter 7 : Edwin McCain - How Strange It Seems Lyrics | MetroLyrics

Original lyrics of How Strange It Seems song by Edwin McCain. Explain your version of song meaning, find more of Edwin McCain lyrics. Watch official video, print or download text in PDF.

Chapter 8 : "Strange as it seems " crossword clue

Provided to YouTube by Warner Music Group How Strange It Seems Â· Edwin McCain Misguided Roses â„— Atlantic Recording Corporation for the United States and WEA International Inc. for the.

Chapter 9 : How Strange It Seems: The Cultural Life of Jews in Small-Town New England by Michael Hobbes

How strange it seems to be me If tomorrow I opened my eyes And found myself somewhere else I wonder who I'd be I'm the house man at a place called the exit The last band I heard bored me to tears.