There is this guy, and he gets turned into a chocolate golem and slowly eaten by a bunch of psychotic women. The Ku Klux Klan is lynching this. What the hell does this have to do with deodorant? While strolling through the city, the monstrosity starts ripping off parts of his sweet fattening flesh and feeding it to random women, signaling another flaw with the product: The obviously food deprived lot of females cannot control themselves and simply attack the poor creature on various occasions, taking bites of him whenever they feel like it. Women. So far, Chocostein has not appeared able to express any emotion other than the trauma inducing frozen grin; so for all we know, he might be screaming in horrible pain from the inside, begging for death. OK guys, we have a problem. Research shows people sometimes stop playing their consoles, for things like How do we fix that with the PS3? We have to cut into their sleep time. How do we make them not want to sleep? Oh, you just leave that to me. So the commercial opens with a shot of a window and doorless white painted sterile room occupied only by an unplugged PS3 and a baby doll. If this surprises you even one bit, you obviously have just tuned in to the list. Continue Reading Below Advertisement Not pictured: The urge you will feel to throw your monitor out the window is perfectly natural, as is the urine in your pants. Then, the doll will laugh with the voice of an adult. That sound you just heard was the last shard of your sanity bouncing off the floor of your skull. And what commercial for a family console would be complete without that little dash of Satan in the mix? Continue Reading Below Advertisement This charming little piece of psychosis ends with the tagline "Play Beyond," which here can only mean "Beyond Sanity. We will mention it to our shrink while we try to forget this happy memory.

The best of The Saturday Evening Post in your inbox! Her interpretation of the stew called feijoada fey-zhoo-ah-dah , an elemental dish of Brazil, is a perfect example. Instead of the fatty pork Brazilians normally use, Schwartz uses chicken. Skinless thighs are ideal, but I find bone-in breasts work well, too. I also streamlined the cooking time in my version of Brazilian chicken and black beans by using canned beans rather than dried. In addition to saving time, this lets me prepare the dish to serve six rather than the huge potful that Schwartz cooks up to feed a crowd. Add chicken and cook until golden brown, 4 minutes on each side. Using tongs, transfer chicken to large bowl. Cover bowl with foil. Add broth to pot and scrape bottom of pot while boiling, gathering up all browned bits. Pour broth over chicken. Seal foil tightly over bowl and set chicken aside. Using paper towel, wipe out pot. Return pot to medium-high heat and add remaining oil. Add onion, celery, green pepper, and scallions to pot and cook, stirring occasionally, until soft, 5 minutes. Add garlic and cook, stirring, for 1 minute. Add bay leaves and sprinkle nutmeg over vegetables. Arrange chicken pieces over vegetables, reserving liquid in bowl. Spread beans over chicken. Pour liquid from bowl over beans. Cover and simmer until chicken thighs are falling-apart tender, minutes. If using breast, cook until white in center at thickest part, minutes. To serve, divide chicken among 6 dinner plates. Mix to combine beans and vegetables, and season to taste with salt, pepper, and cayenne. Garnish with parsley and orange wedges. Serve hot, warm, or at room temperature. Leftovers keep in tightly covered container in refrigerator for 4 days.

Dick really anticipate the Gregorian chant music could be popular? A reader, a PKD fan, cannot read Humpty Dumpty in Oakland without comparing this work to Confessions of a Crap Artist , his non-science fiction publication, originally written in Like Confession Writing in the s, did Philip K. Like Confessions, Humpty Dumpty in Oakland was a realistic, non-science fiction novel written earlier , rejected by publishers, and then kept on the shelves. Unlike Confessions, Humpty was not published until after his death. Dick describes a situation where Jim Fergusson, a retiring garage owner with a bad heart, conflicts with his long time friend and business associate, used car salesman, Al Miller. Along the way the reader meets a smooth talking dirty record producer, a barbershop quartet aficionado, a jazzy realtor, a matronly health food store clerk, and a cultured Greek housewife. One of his ex-wives commented that his novels were a surrealistic autobiography. And on the streets of Oakland, is Al Miller that different from Dick? Struggling, striving, always a paycheck away from disaster? There are no simulacra or slug-like aliens in this narrative, but common PKD themes such as isolation, paranoia, elitist class structure, unreliable hallucination and stark spiritual and cultural ennui are evident. Some critics have called Dick a post-modernist and at first glance I would agree. But Humpty Dumpty in Oakland, again written in , makes me wonder if he was not on to something completely different. Reading his science fiction canon, the predominant bulk of his work, it is easy to slap labels on his intelligent but frequently wacky designs. But Humpty, like Confessions, marks PKD as a deeply introspective writer of his times, not just a rejectionist of earlier structure post-modern. Phil was tuned into his time, the 50s, 60s and 70s " he was a canary in the coalmine for our society up to this point. A more careful examination will reveal that Al had a very close relationship, even an empathy with his African-American neighbors and customers. His dynamic relationship with Mrs. Lane bears closer scrutiny, but here also, Dick was well ahead of his times. A decidedly different sample of his writing, Humpty Dumpty in Oakland, like Confessions of a Crap Artist further demonstrates the great depth and amazingly adept and erudite talent of one of our finest American writers of the twentieth century.

Have you ever read a book or a magazine and it simply made your heart sing? Well the newest Sew Beautiful has made my heart sing and sing and sing! It takes me back to the dreams of beautiful things made on a sewing machine pushing me to start a magazine although I knew nothing about creating a magazine. It takes me to beautiful fabrics. The TWO full sized patterns include the most exquisite little white smocked coat that you have ever seen as well as a hooded baby jacket. The pink hooded baby jacket is a Wendy Schoen creation; not only did she design the gorgeous jacket but also a precious baby bunting. Wait until you see the Winter Rose smocking design plate used on the coat and the matching bishop dress! Lots of hand embroidery is sprinkled throughout the magazine. Oh, my baby daygowns for boys and girls are sooo sweet. New technique for sure and very casual. Every dream I ever had for creating Sew Beautiful many years ago comes to full light in this issue. All of our subscribers will drool over this issue and find so many sewing ideas that they will want to make or to save for the next baby in their family. It is truly a national treasure. Every issue is packed with beautiful clothes. The techniques are unique and interesting. Embroidery by hand and machine is featured and with beautiful style and taste. Fabulous patterns are given in multi sizes. Oh, how thrilled I am with this newest Sew Beautiful. I feel sure you will be too. Maybe you should give yourself an early Christmas present and subscribe to Sew Beautiful. I can promise you that you will not regret it. To subscribe, begin by going here: She had a wonderful weekend and was very honored that her classmates elected her. Thank you again for letting me come into your home this week. I am looking forward to seeing as many of you as possible at the School of Art Fashion, February , ! You will never know how you are appreciated by Martha Pullen Company and by me personally. You are never taken for granted. I pray for our troops and their families. I pray for each of you in difficult situations at this time. I pray for all of you. Never forget how much I love you. This week I was especially intrigued over an article in The Needlecraft Magazine dated November, Some of the statements from the magazine were: Not alone for its simple beauty nor for the reason that it was fashioned by beloved hands, but because machinery cannot duplicate it. Art is a gift. Encourage it in your children. Applaud the first crude stitches of the little five year old and watch them improve, grow into something of genuine beauty-an inspiration. If you have not let your children or grandchildren embroider with your machine please do " with supervision, of course. Many of you know that Philippians is one of my all time most loved books in the Bible. I quote frequently from Ephesians and Philippians. OH, well I better not start telling all of my favorite books or we will be here all day. Please after reading the little nursery rhyme, go back to read once again Philippians 4: He said he would. And he owns every resource. Humpty, Dumpty sat on a wall. Humpty, Dumpty had a great fall. Sometimes they look so hopeless; but nothing is impossible with God. Please know that I care about your difficult falls this week. I pray your falls have not been horridly difficult but I know some of you have had some of those too. Hang on to God. He has never let me down.

Chapter 5 : Brazilian Chicken and Black Bean Stew | The Saturday Evening Post

The Little Red Hen, Illustrations by J. Miller, edition) Mammy (my maternal grandmother) told me this story long before I ever saw the book, and it impressed me deeply. Quite.

Ben is a full sized adult, but Small is only a few inches tall somewhat ironic, as his actor is the taller of the two and flies around on a wooden spoon. The first series of Big Cook, Little Cook aired on 2 February , whilst the second series began on 4 February , with two new episodes being broadcast that day. Until February , CBeebies aired repeats on the channel. Each episode would begin with Big Cook Ben and Little Cook Small encountering a problem, and next a visitor would arrive by the door of their cafe with Small giving the viewer and Ben hints about who the visitor is. After revealing that visitor, Small then tells a short story about his experience with the visitor who paints himself as the real hero. If an ingredient is missing or if one of the two want to know how a certain ingredient is made, Small will then fly away on his magic spoon to see where one of the ingredients is made, such as a chutney factory or a rice field. Once Small gets the ingredient or tells Ben how an ingredient is made, the two proceed to sing a song, remind the viewers of what is required for the recipe, and begin to cook. After finishing the meal and serving it to the customer, they then sing a song involving cleaning up the kitchen. In return of cooking a meal for the visitor, they receive a gift that would solve their problem. Both cooks act in an expansive and overblown style, but the show seems intended to encourage children to take an interest in cooking. The cooks rhyme a lot, like "We need a story to help us cook.
