

Chapter 1 : Making the Truth Known Chapter 1, a harry potter fanfic | FanFiction

Ann D. Ukrainetz is a published author of children's books. A published credit of Ann D. Ukrainetz is Mischievous Mikey Tells the Truth.

Crawford This is a non-canon story. Harry lets the Wizarding World know the truths about all the lies and manipulations that abound. He shakes Magical Britains very foundations. There is slight reference to slash and male pregnancy, but only as something that happened in the past. Spankings T rating for mild cursing. That honor belongs to J. I am a huge fan of hers and like living in her made up world so much I finally decided to write my own stories to use in her world. I hope she sees this as the honor I mean for it to be. This story is not canon by any means. I am sorry to say that there are some characters I despise, even though JKR meant for them to be the good guys. Sorry there will be bashing in this story. I can guarantee that Dumbledore, Snape and Molly Weasley will be included in that. This story will be a one or two-shot at the most. I am trying to write a longer story, but this keeps getting in the way. Review if you want, but know I am writing my very first story and I will listen to critics about spelling and such. I would love any positive feedback, but if it is the actual content of the story, I will not let you offend me. We all have our opinions and this is mine. I know this will be more Americanized than it should be, but I am an American. Sorry if that offends anybody who thinks it should be a more English format. Please enjoy it the way it is meant for you too. A few special notes. This story will also mention gay marriage and male pregnancy, but nothing explicit. I would rate it T just in case of cursing. He was angry and trying to keep them from realizing just how angry he was. There at the head table was that manipulative old fool Dumbledore, a man he had looked up to and admired until he learned the truth about him. Now all he wanted to do was make sure the man paid for his crimes. He wanted to make sure that face never had a twinkle in his eyes again. And there also was Snape, a stinking, snivelling coward who had helped ruin his life. He needed to stop thinking that way or he would be in trouble again. He noticed the sorting was done as he and Hermione made their way to the Gryffindor table to where the first friend he had ever made was sitting. Ron Weasley was a tall gangly red-headed boy that he had met on his first trip on the Hogwarts Express. Every since then they had been best mates, but now he had also learned the truth about him and it took everything in him to sit down beside him like nothing was wrong. He knew he needed to be close to Ron though for just the right moment. Professor McGonagall and Professor Flitwick were both making their way to the head table now, since the tiny Professor had put away the Sorting Hat and stool. He had to do the sorting since McGonagall had called Harry and Hermione aside as soon as they entered the castle. Just thinking about the time in her office had his cheeks tinting red again. Why did Professor Lupin send that note ahead telling her he had passed out on the train? Over at the Slytherin table he noticed that Malfoy was entertaining his friends by pretending to pass out. He knew this was because of him fainting on the train, but it made his insides squirm in anger anyway. He had made sure they had received the invites hours ago. It was going to be a monumental moment that was for sure. He was rubbing his hands together in glee on the inside, just thinking of the chaos that he was going to cause. Evidently his Marauder side was coming out in spades now. He felt the stares from almost all in the Great Hall, and he knew it was because quite a few were upset that he had disappeared for more than three weeks this summer, while most actually thought he had been murdered, and some probably hoped he had been. McGonagall had demanded to know where he had been while he was in her office, and got really angry at him when he refused to tell her. Potter, the Headmaster is your magical guardian, and he asked me to find out where you were, and furthermore I do not appreciate your cheek," she exclaimed angrily. Potter, you may wait outside while I speak to Miss Granger about her schedule, and we will go to the feast together. I will also be taking ten points from you for your attitude. He had felt the point loss was unjust, but as he knew that he was going to be getting back at those present he just decided to use the anger when the time was right. Just as he turned to stare at the doors of the Great Hall waiting for them to open and admit his guests he noticed that McGonagall was talking to Dumbledore. The man turned to glare at him angrily as did Snape who evidently was listening in on their conversation but this just made him smirk. As the plates were finally cleaned and Dumbledore stood to give his start of term speech the door opened admitting quite a few people to the shock of all those in the Hall, only Harry was unsurprised by their admittance. Most, both students and staff were actually gaping as the people entered. Harry was metaphorically rubbing his hands in excitement as the moment he had been waiting for all through dinner finally arrived. I take it that you were not the one to send such an invitation then? You are once again letting your arrogance show," snapped Snape. The Gryffindor counter was the only one showing any points at all. Potter, you will fix the counter and also serve your detentions with Professor Snape, and you will also be losing another ten points for being disrespectful to your Professor," Dumbledore argued sternly. But everyone once again noticed that the points stayed the same, even with Dumbledore removing points. This was shocking to everyone but Harry and the Goblins. It is exactly how it is meant to be. It will remove points that are deserved as well as only giving those earned, just the way the Founders intended. That way no professor, no matter who they are, can punish or reward a student unfairly. Which is what it states emphatically in Hogwarts a History, the original version. But before we go there I have a couple of questions myself that I need to ask. Madam Bones and Mr. Moody did you bring the bottles of Veritaserum that I asked you to bring? By the way Mrs. Especially after the things I found out about you this summer. I have no idea," she stammered unconvincingly. Moody do you have that Veritaserum? Madam Bones as you are the Head of the DMLE I will let you decide what is to be our first topic of conversation, or should I say who we will be discussing first. While you are deciding where you want to start, I need Rita Skeeter to come forward please. What did you want Mr. Maybe you did not notice the goblins standing by my side. They are two of the highest officials in the Goblin Nation, and they have promised to make sure only the truth will be told, and trust me they have the power to make sure that is true. Both have promised they will protect my rights against all and any who try to walk all over me. What do I have to say? So I swear it! So mote it be! She then turned to Harry and said, "Now it is your turn. But the Minister was the one that asked the question. Potter why did you claim that is your name? Your name is Harry James Potter, everyone knows that. I was there when you were born and that was not the name you were given. Have, you chosen where you want to start Madam Bones? He will kill all of us," shouted a lot of people. Black," Dumbledore stated importantly. The secret passages have also been closed for the night. A blaze of fire lit up beside Dumbledore, and a beautiful red and gold Phoenix appeared when the fire dissipated. Potter this has gone on long enough. I demand you stop this nonsense at once," ordered McGonagall. It is time for the wizarding world to learn the truth, and I am determined to make sure they do just that. Do you agree that my oath will prove that? Potter, you will have to tell the truth or risk losing your magic and life," she acknowledged. So we were going to talk about Sirius Black. The first thing I have to say is Sirius Black is innocent! He did not betray my parents! He did not kill Pettigrew!

Chapter 2 : Der Moment der Wahrheit () - IMDb

I always wanted to do a video about Adrienne Bailon. In this video I will exposed all of her mischievous deeds. Some you may know and some you don't.

They are led by Mikey Kudo. During the series, they recruit Nene Amano and Christopher Aonuma. He excels in all sports and has a charming personality that wins over humans and Digimon alike, though he has a tendency to overexert himself. Aside from his charisma, Mikey has proven himself to be an excellent strategist, able to see through the plans of his enemies and counter them accordingly, making his presence a necessity for the team. Unlike other members, Mikey can hear the melody of Digimon that are in life-threatening danger. During their travels, they meet many friendly Digimon who join their cause. They encounter the rival group Blue Flare. They face the evil minions of the Bagra Army as well as Team Midnight. There, Mikey learns that time on Earth is far slower than in the Digital World before he attempts to find a way back to the Digital World to save it. By then, the one who gave him his Fusion Loader is revealed to be Omnimon, who reveals the origin of the DigiCards as well as the history of the Digital World and tells them how he ended up on Earth as a DigiCard and has been searching for someone who could hear him, which turns out to be Mikey, as only he can hear the Digital Melody. After enabling Shoutmon to digivolve into OmniShoutmon, in order to do battle, defeat and ultimately destroy Tactimon, Mikey returns to the Digital World with Shoutmon. Upon returning to the Digital World, Mikey and Shoutmon learn that Bagramon had it reconstructed into a realm composed of the Bagra Fortress and seven kingdoms, each ruled by a Dark General with their very own Darkness Loader. Reunited with the other Fusion Fighters, Mikey and Nene convince Christopher to join forces with them and they set to travel together through the Kingdoms to challenge the Dark Generals and liberate the Digital World from Bagramon. One year later, Mikey, now in eighth grade, formed a street basketball team "Xros Heart" with Ewan and Tagiru. He is revealed to be one of the six Legendary Heroes of the Digimon Multiverse. He enjoys singing and wields a microphone for leisure and to help in combat, his chances of winning depending on the amount of passion he has. He ultimately fused himself with all the Digimon members of both the Fusion Fighters and Blue Flare, the restored Digimon which comprised the DigiCards, ally Digimon met during the course of his journey through the Zones and Lands of the Digital World, former enemies, as well as the remaining Digimon inhabitants of the Digital World to take down DarknessBagramon and save both the Digital World and the Earth. After the battle against MegaDarknessBagramon, Shoutmon works hard to improve the newly reformed Digital World as the new Digimon King, until several Digimon start disappearing into DigiQuartz and he joins forces with Mikey once again looking to find the reason for it. This form is occasionally equipped with the Star Axe. As a result, Shoutmon becomes able to fight on his own with much more power than any of his previous DigiFused forms possessed. His signature move is "Brave Beat Rock Double Fusion" "Brave Beat Rock Double Xros" in the original Japanese , either consuming himself in energy while ramming an opponent or launching two overlapping energy crosses hued in red and blue, the respective colors of the Fusion Fighters and Blue Flare. Its tail and pinions fuse into the Soul Calibur, with a small panel folding down on the upper body to cover where the tail detached. It has the OmniShoutmon and ZekeGreymon components in the same places as X7, except that the X7 head stays on the left pauldron. This form only appears in the manga. In the English dub, Starmon speaks in the style of Elvis Presley. The Pickmon come in three varieties: He accompanies the Fusion Fighters and acts as their guide. She assists Mikey and Shoutmon when they returned to the Digital World, updating them on what occurred in their absence and rescuing the other Fusion Fighters from the fearsome Dark General Dorbickmon. After some inspiring words from Shoutmon to follow his dream, ChibiTortomon helps the Fusion Fighters against Octomon before joining the group. As a member of the Fusion Fighters, ChibiTortomon serves as an underwater scout and enables Digimon he is Digifused with to breathe and swim freely underwater. He was presented by Wisemon to help Mikey with water support. Even though the English dub refers to him as ChibiTortomon, he is listed as ChibiKamemon in the credits. Though her role in the Fusion Fighters is small, Beastmon played a role in the formation of GreatestCutemon and took down the enlarged Tyutyumon singlehanded, before eating him due to her feline instincts. He serves as the leader of the PawnChessmon unit. In the Japanese version, they tend to say "Chess" at the end of their sentences. He was looking for a treasure in a diamond mine when he ran into the Fusion Fighters. When Laylamon forcibly teleported the Fusion Fighters out of the Sand Zone, Deputymon was taken with them, officially making him a part of the team, with the main role of tracker. In his DigiFusions with Beelzemon and Ballistamon, he provides each with additional fire power. In the English dub, Deputymon speaks in a Western accent and his gun parts were recolored to blue. He occasionally assisted Laylamon during her attacks on the Lake Zone and later in the Sand Zone, where he halts his attack on Mikey when the goddess that his order revered deemed him a warrior for their cause. In his current state, Beelzemon is a powerful Demon Lord Digimon, armed with a large gun attached to his right arm and the ability to move through Zones on his own. He is revived in the final battle with DarknessBagramon and reciprocates the love Mervamon feels for him just before the final battle ensues. Shoutmon still teases him about him and Mervamon. When DigiFused with Shoutmon, Puppetmon provides Shoutmon with wooden armor and upgrades his microphone into a hammer. Wisemon wanted to research Mikey in various ways. He assists Mikey in saving the rest of the Fusion Fighters from Arukadhimon at the cost of his book. Mikey discovered, upon arrival in the Warrior Zone, that Wisemon had joined up with them. Angie Hinomoto[edit] Voiced by: Angie lives with her family, taking care of her three younger siblings. She stated to play shooting games with one of them, which helped in the Island Zone sub-arc. At one point, she and Mikey became close friends. At the beginning of the series, Angie arrives at the Digital World. She even suggests they track down another human when hearing about two other Generals being in the Digital World, thinking that they might know how to get home. When hearing about the Code Crown and the dreams of being Digimon King, she goes with it, thinking that if Shoutmon becomes King, they will be able to go home. After forming the Fusion Fighters United Army and retreating to a separate subspace, they reunite with Cutemon. Mikey tried to hide the existence of the DigiQuartz from her and Jeremy in order to protect them, but she eventually learned the truth when Mikey was targeted by SuperStarmon. Dorulumon[edit] Voiced by: Though he rejected repeated offers from Mikey to join the Fusion Fighters, preferring to travel alone, while aiding Cutemon in finding his parents, Dorulumon became a Fusion Fighter to honor his fallen friend BlueMeramon. He forms the lower body and right shoulder of Shoutmon X3 and subsequent forms. During the final battle against Quartzmon, Angie receives a Fusion Loader and Dorulumon becomes one of her partners. It only appears in the manga. Cutemon[edit] Voiced by: Being the only one of his village to have escaped from the Bagra Army, Cutemon was found by Dorulumon as the two search for his abducted parents. Cutemon encountered Angie while in the Village of Light, taking a liking to her and her friends before eventually joining the team as their healer. In the process, Cutemon manages to find his parents but remains with the Fusion Fighters. An exceedingly sensible person, he insists on troublesome things like how etiquette in a duel should be properly implemented. Because of this, Mikey feels awkward around his presence and Angie very obviously tries to chase him away. His parents run a mechanic-type business. Thanks to this, he is knowledgeable about machines and does repairs to Ballistamon. He also has a severe crush on Nene Amano, which sometimes leads him to make a fool of himself. After returning to the human world, Mikey leaves Jeremy behind. Mikey tried to hide the existence of DigiQuartz from him and Angie in order to protect them, but Mikey tells Jeremy after being attacked by SuperStarmon. In the fight against Quartzmon, Jeremy receives a cerulean Fusion Loader, and owns Ballistamon and Deputymon as partners. The force of the impact caused DarkVolumon to shut down, as he was found by Shoutmon, who repaired and reconfigured him. With most of his memories lost, DarkVolumon was rechristened "Ballistamon" by Shoutmon and became his friend. As a member of the Fusion Fighters, Ballistamon forms the main body of Shoutmon X2 and the left shoulder, lower torso, and arms of Shoutmon X3 and subsequent forms. Before the final battle against Quartzmon, Jeremy received a Fusion Loader and Ballistamon officially became his partner along with Deputymon. DigiFuse of Ballistamon and Beastmon. Christopher Aonuma[edit] Voiced by: Before coming to the Digital World, he is the son of the CEO of the Aonuma Group, who is mistreated to mold him into a successor by sending him to an elite school. After his parents died in an accident, Christopher lost his estate. Soon after, Christopher formed Team Blue Flare, a group that reflects his ambition to be strong and undisputed. Christopher originally had an interest in Mikey because of his strength and abilities, helping him at times to persuade Mikey to join his army before considering him a worthy rival. Christopher decided to join forces with Nene Amano before ending their partnership in the Jungle Zone, when she tries to force him to torture a defeated Stingmon for information, seeing such an action beneath him. Since then, now seeing Mikey as a worthy rival to him, Christopher aided the Fusion Fighters prior to losing his Code Crown fragments to Bagramon, with his group the only active resistance against the Bagra Army by the time Mikey and Shoutmon return from Earth. In Canyon Land, Christopher came up with a very dangerous plan to attack Gravimon. However, when Deckerdramon sacrifices himself to protect everyone, Christopher received closure when his father tells him that he was proud of him and that he was not alone anymore, enabling Shoutmon X7 to be born. After the final defeat of the Dark Generals and the death of Axeknightmon, Christopher helped fight in the final battle against Bagramon. Learning of the Digimon Hunt, Christopher was skeptical of its true purpose and resolved to investigate it around the world. He tells Mikey and the others that, although he will continue investigating the Digimon Hunt and DigiQuartz, he will act separately and tells Mikey to look after Japan until they meet again. Christopher and Nene return to Japan to defeat Quartzmon. Like his human partner, Greymon valued strength above everything else and had no respect for Shoutmon as he tends to insult his size. Prior to being formerly introduced to the Fusion Fighters at the Lake Zone, Greymon appeared when Christopher needed to execute hit and run attacks on the Bagra Army. His signature move is Giga Blaster. ZekeGreymon is clad in golden armor and his final attack is Final Trident Strike. He forms the armor of MetalGreymon. Neil Kaplan A fearsome cyborg dragonoid with a lance as his weapon. This version of Cyberdramon is much different from the original one. An armored, metallic, crocodile Digimon armed with powerful weaponry, including his Crocodile Cannons.

The middle princess is mischievous and tells the truth sometimes and lies the rest of the time. As you will be forever married to one of the princesses, you want to marry the eldest (truth-teller) or the youngest (liar) because at least you know where you stand with them.

Learning that Player is trying to help Donald and Goofy rebuild their Gummi Ship in order to return home, the King sends Chip and Dale to help finish the ship. Mickey speculates that a force other than his Star Shard led him there, remaining unaware that Foreteller Invi is watching him from a nearby rooftop. Gummi Block Battle Pt. He and Pete sailed the steamboat Willie throughout Timeless River. Four times, Mickey appears at scenes of trouble, either in peril or appearing to be so, saving the day, or both. On one such occasion, his house is attacked by hordes of Heartless and a mini black hole that sucks up all his furniture. After each time Sora helps him out, Mickey shakes his hand and leads him to another scene of peril. At some point, Mickey gains knowledge of the Keyblade and begins to study them, as well as how to travel to other worlds. Eventually, he travels to Country of the Musketeers to solve a problem, along with Donald and Goofy. His task while here is to protect Minnie, who would eventually join him in ruling over Disney Castle. At another point in time, he finds his way to the Mysterious Tower, where Master Yen Sid takes him in as an apprentice. By enchanting the brooms, he has them do his chores and eventually decides to take a nap, only to awaken and find that the spell has gone horribly wrong and chaos is running rampant, with the entire tower flooded. Despite his mistakes, Yen Sid keeps him on as his apprentice and Mickey eventually is able to wield the Star Seeker Keyblade. The Star Shard knew that Mickey needed to be there to save Ventus. When Ventus loses a fight with Vanitas, he steps in to help. He is whisked off to Neverland when the battle ends, telling Aqua to not worry about him. While exploring Neverland, Mickey is ambushed by Vanitas and knocked unconscious, who then proceeds to kidnap Mickey and take him to the Keyblade Graveyard. Ven tries to help Mickey when he finds out about it, only for them to both get sucked into a vortex. Mickey is left stranded in space before Aqua finds him and takes him back to the Mysterious Tower. Mickey guards Aqua from a possessed Ventus. Later, after Aqua leaves with Ventus to find him a safe place, Mickey sorrowfully hands in the Star Shard and his Star Seeker Keyblade, thinking he has failed to reach his goal and disappointed his master, and begins to leave. Before he departs, however, Master Yen Sid hands him back the Keyblade with a smile, showing him that he is indeed worthy of the title of Keyblade Master. Mickey then happily accepts it. After the barriers between the worlds shatter, causing meteors to fall from the sky, Mickey realizes the threat that the Darkness presents. Mickey seeks help for his concerns and the danger he expects. Inspecting the meteors, Mickey found they had a similar property to the Star Shard. Gathering up enough of the raw material, Mickey built his first Gummi Ship, using it to travel in search of any world that was in danger of the Darkness. They would discuss many topics. At one point, Mickey visited Ansem to discuss the growing threat the Heartless posed to the stability of the worlds. Sometime during these years, Scrooge and Mickey traveled together to create a transit system. There will always be a door to the light. He left a note instructing his friends, Donald and Goofy, to "find the Key", and arrived in Traverse Town at the same time as Sora. Keeping himself out of sight, he located a Corridor of Darkness leading into the dark realm, and passed through it followed by his dog, Pluto. After a brief reunion, they are attacked by a swarm of Heartless, but manage to defeat them. Mickey is surprised that he has finally found Aqua, and she explains how her sacrifice to save Terra-Xehanort from sinking into darkness trapped her there. Afterward, she joins him on his journey through the Realm of Darkness to find the Keyblade. Eventually, the pair arrive at the wreckage of Destiny Islands and are intercepted by a massive swarm of Heartless at the entrance to the Secret Place. After defeating the Heartless, they enter the cave and discover the Keyblade, but just as Mickey acquires it, they spot Riku, whose body had been stolen by Ansem, Seeker of Darkness, being chased by a swarm of Heartless. Although Sora is reluctant to leave Mickey and Riku trapped within the Realm of Darkness, Mickey assures them that there will always be the Door to Light, and thanks Donald and Goofy for their loyalty. Kingdom Hearts Chain of Memories[edit] "Your darkness belongs to you, just the same way your light does. Up til now, I thought darkness was something that should never exist. Then I spent time with you and changed my mind. Light and dark, back to back. Although Sora, Donald and Goofy initially enter Castle Oblivion believing the King to be there, Mickey is only able to send a bit of his light to help Riku in the twelfth basement, when he is attacked by Ansem. When Riku enters the eleventh basement, Mickey is able to project an image of himself, and he makes Riku promise to keep fighting the darkness, while promising to find a way to where Riku is. Mickey promises to save Riku if he is defeated by Ansem. Mickey accompanies Riku to the entrance to the first basement, where Riku intends to face Ansem once and for all. Riku asks Mickey to let him face Ansem alone, and he tries to get Mickey to promise to destroy him if Ansem possesses him again. Mickey refuses and promises instead to rescue Riku, no matter what. When Riku thanks "[his] Majesty", Mickey laughs and says that, as a friend, Riku can just call him "Mickey". Mickey and Riku leave the castle, wearing the black coats given to them by DiZ, who they encounter at the crossroads. He asks Riku whether he has chosen to follow the roads of light or darkness. Riku instead chooses the "road to dawn", and he and Mickey continue on. Some time after this, the two of them walk through The Great Maw, where Riku momentarily collapses under the strain of the darkness in his heart. Although a concerned Mickey tries to help, Riku shrugs him off. Initially perceiving him as an enemy, Mickey readies his Keyblade to attack until Riku calmly ties his blindfold into place, shocking Mickey as he reverts to his true self. Mickey is left confused, but Riku further explains that the Organization used the memories they stolen from Sora at Castle Oblivion to create a copy of Sora to do their bidding; if Sora does not get his memories of Kairi back, he will remain asleep. Mickey urges Riku to let him help, but the latter declines. Revealing his plans to face a member of the Organization soon and his insecurity about surviving the fight, Riku makes Mickey promise to guide and protect Sora and their friends once they awaken. As Sora, Donald, and Goofy have been asleep for a year and remain unaware of recent events, Mickey pays a visit to Yen Sid to ask him to brief the trio on the threat of the Nobodies. To help them get to the Mysterious Tower, Mickey rides a train provided by his teacher back to Twilight Town. Not wanting Sora and Kairi to know about his condition, Riku pleads with Mickey not to reveal his whereabouts or his condition to Sora, and Mickey reluctantly agrees. After the battle, he hands Sora the pouch of munny Riku gave him and instructs him to visit his mentor, Yen Sid, running off afterward. This information is based on alternate scenes or materials and is not considered canon within the overall plot of the series. If Sora falls in battle against certain enemies, the King will arrive to stall the enemy and restore Sora to full health. At Hollow Bastion, Mickey reveals the truth about "Ansem", but is reluctant to reveal any information on Riku. He then aides the group in fending off the Heartless that Maleficent has summoned to destroy Radiant Garden. Initially, he orders Sora, Donald, and Goofy to leave Hollow Bastion and leave the Heartless to them, but Donald and Goofy go against his orders when they realize how desperate Sora is to help Leon. He later confronts them after they defeat Demyx, at first appearing angry, but soon simply decides to allow them to help. When Goofy apparently dies after taking a nasty blow to the head while saving Mickey from the same fate, Mickey swears that the Heartless would pay and permanently discards his Organization XIII disguise. They are later relieved to discover that Goofy was only unconscious. When they enter the world, Mickey goes ahead of Sora to look for Ansem the Wise. He eventually finds him, and rescues him from a group of Nobodies. Ansem then attempts to use his machine to convert Kingdom Hearts into data, but was unsuccessful and vanishes when the machine explodes. Mickey explains that one cannot live in a world without light nor darkness. Xemnas then blocks out King Mickey and Kairi from participating in the final fight, first by launching a building at him and Kairi, closing the door to Kingdom Hearts, and later closing the dark portal to the Destiny Islands, preventing Mickey, Kairi, Donald, and Goofy from returning to aid Sora and Riku. Soon after, Mickey sends Sora, Riku, and Kairi a bottled letter. When bugs appear in the digital system, he decides to create a data version of Sora to fix them. After disposing of them with the Star Seeker, he tries to leave the library to check the castle, but finds himself locked in, along with Jiminy, Donald, and Goofy. Somehow, they have been transported into the digital journal itself. While in the journal, he joins forces with Data-Sora and the journal itself in the form of Riku to dispatch the Heartless and debug the digital world. Preparing for another adventure, Mickey requests to be taken into the digital world again to solve this new mystery. Mickey writing the letter to Sora. After everything in the journal was restored, Mickey returns to the real world to write the letter to Sora to tell him about those who need him to heal their sadness, and a new journey is about to begin. Their discussion quickly shifts towards the topic of Master Xehanort, who Mickey is stunned to learn will return due to the defeat of his Heartless, Ansem, and his Nobody, Xemnas, and the subsequent restoration of Xehanort. Fearing that they may have to fight more than a "single one of Xehanort", Yen Sid orders Mickey to bring Sora and Riku before him so that they may take the Mark of Mastery exam. Maleficent demands that Mickey hand the Datascape over to her, but Mickey refuses. Lea arrives and helps free Minnie. Mickey orders Maleficent to leave, and he and his friends return to the Mysterious Tower. Mickey accuses Xehanort of ruining the lives of his friends. Later on, when Sora and Riku do not return from the Sleeping Worlds at the expected time, Mickey enters and finds Riku in Where Nothing Gathers, using a Stopza spell to freeze Young Xehanort and help him save the comatose Sora, but Xehanort remains unaffected by the spell and knocks Mickey aside in order to battle Riku. As Master Xehanort prepares to turn Sora into a vessel for a piece of his heart, Xemnas physically restrains Mickey from rescuing him. Lea arrives in time to protect Sora, and Ansem responds by releasing his Guardian, who grabs Mickey and Riku, but is knocked out by Donald and Goofy. Riku is named a Keyblade Master for this and Mickey congratulates his friend, but is shocked when Lea summons his own Keyblade. Along their journey, Sora and Riku also cross paths with two past incarnations of Mickey: Yen Sid then assigns Riku and Mickey the mission to rescue Aqua and gives the two Keyblade Masters new clothes from the three fairies to shield them from the darkness. Other Appearances[edit] Kingdom Hearts Re: Mickey Mouse Mickey is an anthropomorphic mouse with black fur, round ears of the same color, and a thin, long, black tail. The fur on his face is cream-colored.

Publishers Circulation Corp. is a publisher of children's books. Some of the books published by Publishers Circulation Corp. include The Delinquents, The Flying Boy, Melvin Howard's Fireside Chats, and Miratambo Moonsong.

Michelangelo first appears in a conversation with Shadow Jones after the 17 year time skip, having dropped all his ninja attire and now sporting a frayed sleeveless vest and jeans. When at home, he is also seen wearing a muscle shirt and sweatpants. The belt he wears is also different than Raphael and Donatello, in that it is more like a traditional human belt with a buckle, rather than the typical martial arts sash. Well known for being jovial, light-hearted and a prankster, cursed Michelangelo emerges as serious, thoughtful and pessimistic. Cursed Michelangelo is similar to the other cursed versions of his brothers in that it enhances his flaws to the extreme. Where the usual Mikey is happy and enjoys making his brothers smile even at the cost of his own pride, dark Mikey would rather leave them to themselves to suffer their own cursed fate and live his separate albeit fairly normal life on his own. Normal Mikey was not particularly self-sacrificing or brave, although protective when necessary and rising to any challenge that threatened his family. He cares deeply for his family but his fear of the emotional pain involved in being a ninja, and his need for self-preservation lead his dark self practically abandoning Raphael and Donatello and completely leaving his life as a ninja in favor of a quiet life with April and her family. Without his brothers to entertain and be the foil for he becomes quiet, introverted and passionate about his writing. When presented with the challenge of helping Shadow fight for Davianna in Chapter 4: Business with the Purple Dragons! He breaks down, frozen until Shadow returns and apologizes, although it is evident that he agrees. During his fight on Christmas eve, believing Shadow to be dead because of his careless and selfish pursuit of writing about the Purple Dragons and the NYC Foot he is able to conquer his fear and fight, having lost all hope of rescuing her and only having the life of her young friend Davianna Wallace. He appears to overcome the effects of the Curse of Yamata-no-Orochi when Raphael comes to his aid during the fight with the Elite ninja Eikichi Gotoh and he makes the decision that he is going to protect his brother for once, instead of always being protected in Chapter And So the Pages Turn This significant event changes his heart and mind as he finally understands that he was incomplete without the bond of his brothers. He realizes he missed feeling joy, and bringing joy to his family and decides to combine both aspects of his personality so he can be whole once again. It is not yet well understood how Mikey broke his curse, though in Chapter Once he returns to his normal self he once again becomes light-hearted, joyful and excitable, leading Leonardo to believe he may have never been cursed in the first place. Biography In the Prologue , Michelangelo Hamato is still a year-old turtle living in a lair in the sewer with his brothers Raphael , Leonardo and Donatello and their father Splinter. Michelangelo convinces Raphael to join him for sparring, catching him in the middle of an argument with Leo upon their return from the surface. Leo intervenes and sends Mikey to Donatello to treat his wound. After Leo is subsequently consumed by the curse, Donnie leaves Mikey to investigate until Raphael returns looking for the Shell Cell to contact Splinter, and then tries to explain what has happened to a hesitant Michelangelo. Not believing Raphael because he again attacks him, Mikey runs away from Raph only to discover an unconscious Donnie and Leo waiting in the shadows. Still fearing an attack from Raph, Mikey ignores Leo who takes the opportunity to try and kill him. Raphael comes to his defense and is seriously wounded by Leonardo as he steps in front of Mikey to protect him. Confused but understanding what Raph has done for him, Mikey teams up with Donnie and knocks Leo to the side, giving them a moment to recover. While Donatello tries to buy them time to get away, Mikey has to hold Raph back from charging Leo as he attacks Donnie. Splinter arrives but fails to completely destroy the curse by transferring it to his own body and telling Leo to kill him. Heartbroken at the loss of his father, Leo leaving for Japan and the broken trust and bond with his brothers, Michelangelo seeks out April and asks to move in with her. According to a flashback in Chapter 3: Broken Brotherhood - Burden from "Back Then" , he returns later to the a lair in the sewer for his things and the chasm between he and Raphael begins as his brother tries to convince him that the whole ordeal was partly his fault for convincing Raphael to open the package. Undaunted, likely because he realizes his curiosity may have been careless but there was no way he could have predicted the outcome, he leaves Raphael to his bitterness and guilt, but in the process also leaves his happiness. Michelangelo appears in the events 17 years later when Davianna Wallace stops in to have tea with his niece Shadow Jones, sharing their grief in Chapter 2: He observes from hiding that Davianna cried, something that seems to have slipped by Shadow as she claims that as a writer, he understands people and emotions better than she does. At the funeral Shadow confronts Raphael and is horrified to learn that he has brought along Renoir who is actually Augustus in a new form who tries to convince his younger sister Carole Amherst of his identity. Also horrified, calling him an abomination, Michelangelo grabs and throws the younger turtle off Carole and in to Raphael. The next day in Chapter 3: Broken Brotherhood - Burden from "Back Then", Michelangelo catches Renoir sneaking in through the bathroom window when he hears Shadow scream. He recalls the events to Renoir of when he left the lair, pointing out that from that point Raphael was consumed by guilt and tried to pull Michelangelo in to his downward spiral of self-destruction. Mikey refused to succumb to his attempts and effectively disowned him, telling Raph that he tries to pull people down so he is not alone in his misery. Mikey no longer desires to bolster the mood or support his passionate brother and leaves Raph alone with his guilt. He tries to show Renoir that Raphael was not always so violent and grumpy, but that he grew to be that way after drowning in his misery for so long. Renoir challenges him asking if he is not trusted then why give him so much personal information about his family. Michelangelo admits he has an ulterior motive of helping Renoir help Raph, since he is no longer able to do it himself. He accuses Mikey of being glad Splinter died so he could have a happy life with April and Casey and Shadow, again trying to make him admit that they both were responsible for the murder of their father. Still not buying into the guilt Mikey only sympathetically comforts Raph in his misery of being abandoned and guilt ridden, again playing his part as the support to his brother after he absorbs the chaos not only for himself, but for Michelangelo as well. The following morning in Chapter 4: When Raphael awakens he begrudgingly thanks Mikey after insulting him for his support and Mikey acknowledges him after he leaves. The bridge of communication between the two is finally at least open, although still very shaky. A bit later Shadow calls Michelangelo asking for help to fight off some Purple Dragons to rescue Davianna. He tells her to call the police and come home but Shadow refuses saying the Dragons have police connections. She brings up that they had always protected innocents, trying to stir him up enough to want to help but it triggers an internal battle for Michelangelo. Renoir leaves him to help Shadow. When Shadow returns safely in Chapter 5: The Untimely Clash - Raphael vs. Michelangelo, Michelangelo is struggling writing his next novel, concerned about his reputation and career, and his inability to focus ever since Raphael came back into his life. He sees his diary and believes he may have an answer to both problems. Raphael arrives with Renoir to have his book report corrected for Davianna. The fight continues in Chapter 8: In his later struggle to write he realizes that his creativity was tied to his past self, the happy-go-lucky and carefree younger version of himself. He consults his journal to inspire his imagination, leading to Raphael beating him when he finds out what he did. Raphael accuses Michelangelo of making money off murdering their father, which Mikey denies doing. He continues to beat Mikey, yelling at him that he is denying reality until Mikey begins to fight back, both physically and verbally. He points out that Raphael is the one running away, isolating himself and eventually taking in Renoir to pretend that he is what Raphael wants to be. Unable to lift Raphael to throw him, Michelangelo continues to suffer. He tells Raphael that he meditated for an entire year on his decision to leave behind his life whereas Raph spend mere seconds to decided that Mikey was a traitor. Raphael breaks his hand in fury, then the other when Mikey says he can still type with one hand. Reeling in pain Mikey lectures Raphael on the short term reward for harming himâ€”that no matter how much he beats on him it will not bring Splinter backâ€”and that everything and everyone must move on and that it is not his fault that Raphael chooses to dwell on the past and linger forever in his guilt. Angered past any point of reason Raphael attempts to take one last, fatal blow to his brother but is stopped by Shadow. She puts herself in his path in order to stop him from killing her uncle. Mikey silently begs Raph to come to his senses before he hurts Shadow, who asks him to stop and for everything to just be okay again. Raphael has a moment to remember standing with Mikey, supporting each other and caring for each other. When he "awakens" from his rage he is horrified at what he has done. Raphael apologizes and attempts to help Mikey in Chapter 9: Deeper in the Abyss. Understanding that Raphael was not really himself and no longer feeling the need to widen the rift between them, Mikey tells him it is okay. When Raph continues and tried to help him up Mikey slaps his hand away and tells him not to touch him, and to leave. Raphael, feeling even more rejected and guilty than before, complies. Renoir wishes to stay but Mikey turns him down, telling him to be with Raph because he needs him more than ever. The police arrive and just as he fears he must reveal himself, he and Shadow are saved by the timely return of April and Casey Jones who had been on a second honeymoon. Enter Casey and April!!! Shadow tries to cheer him up and is glad to hear the Mikey does still care about Raph. As he finishes up wrapping his Christmas presents in Chapter The Crimson Christmas , Michelangelo is interrupted by a note launched through the window with a shuriken telling him the fate of two innocent girls depends on his arrival at the given address. Feeling his past calling him more strongly than it has in a very long time, Michelangelo dons his bandana, sheds his human clothing and again wields his chosen weapons, his nunchaku , ready to dive back in to the work of pain and darkness. He leaves without telling anyone, unknowingly crossing paths with Renoir on his way bringing Shadow home. Back into the Shadows shows Michelangelo coming across a cat that reminds him of his first human Christmas, when he found Klunk , and he wonders if it is an omen that his past has now caught up with him and is truly a part of his current reality. He enters the battlefield and begins to recall the lessons he learned long ago from Splinter, using his natural abilities to try and gain the upper hand. After being pelted with shuriken and lying defeated because he still refuses to fight, he realizes they never meant to bargain and that they meant to kill both him and the girls. With nothing left to lose he becomes enraged and begins to fight back, wishing at the very least end that he can end his life getting revenge for Shadow. As he fights his skill returns and when he finally gets his hands on his weapons, his nunchaku , a part of him awakens and he launches in to a full on assault of the NYC Foot, embracing his former abilities to fight and enjoy it. Casey arrives in the middle of the fight to assist him and tells Mikey that Shadow and Davianna are both alive. On hearing the news Michelangelo collapses, his motive for fighting lost and relief giving way to exhaustion. Raphael and Donatello arrive and enter the battle, and Raph awakens a confused Mikey to haul him to safety. Mikey asks him why he came and Raphael hassles him, telling him he only partially commits to these changes, holding on to his memories when he leaves the ninja life behind, and forgetting his bond with his brothers when he returns. Michelangelo weeps hearing that Raph still considers him his brother and will always be there for him, for better or for worse. The two are stopped by Eikichi who attacks Raphael by temporarily blinding him with bloody snow then swinging his ono axe in an attempt to kill him. Michelangelo is thrown in to the memory of Raphael protecting him from Leo all those years ago, and as Raph continues in the present to tell him he will protect him no matter what, Mikey decides it is time to stop running and being protected and it is time to accept his fate and responsibilities and do what he should have done years ago.

Hey Everyone! Since the first two were uber long, I decided to just post Leo and Raph's chapter first and then tomorrow Mikey and Donnie's will be out tomorrow. Sorry for not being on to post much on this.

Found this one on the xkcd logic puzzle forum. I really like it. Puzzle You are the most eligible bachelor in the kingdom, and as such the King has invited you to his castle so that you may choose one of his three daughters to marry. The eldest princess is honest and always tells the truth. The youngest princess is dishonest and always lies. The middle princess is mischievous and tells the truth sometimes and lies the rest of the time. As you will be forever married to one of the princesses, you want to marry the eldest truth-teller or the youngest liar because at least you know where you stand with them. The problem is that you cannot tell which sister is which just by their appearance, and the King will only grant you ONE yes or no question which you may only address to ONE of the sisters. What yes or no question can you ask which will ensure you do not marry the middle sister? Help Hint Although you might be able to solve this puzzle using a meta-question along the lines of "if I asked them what you would say if Also, the question you ask can be something that all three sisters definitely know the true answer to. Answer Assume the three sisters are standing in a straight line. As the sister in the middle, "Is your sister on your right older than your sister on your left? Solution There are three four possible cases. The sister standing in the middle could be the eldest, in which case she would answer truthfully. In this case, you should marry whichever sister she claims is younger, as this will be the youngest sister of the three. If the sister standing in the middle is the youngest, then she will lie to you. Thus you want to marry the sister she identifies as the younger, who will actually be the elder of the two, and as such the eldest sister of the three. Cases 3 and 4 are that you are actually asking the middle-aged sister, and she either answers truthfully or falsely. But in either case, you can select the sister she claims is younger, as that sister would either be the youngest or the eldest of the three. So always selecting the sister indicated to be the youngest leaves you with an acceptable outcome.

Yep, nothing could ruin this holiday for the Hamato family! Oh yeah, except for one of their own members. But what if there were spirits, to show the true meaning of Christmas to even the worst grouch? If it does, great! But is the damage already done? All turtles are 10, except for Mikey, who is 9. Who knew to get a break you have to work so hard! W, everyone is like ten years old. Except Mikey, who is still nine. Everyone was wearing an ugly sweater Mikey made them. They were all singing Christmas carols together as one huge family. All except for one particular turtle, Raphael. Even though it was Christmas Eve, he was in such a horrible mood. And why do you have to wear ugly sweaters just to get presents. It was all stupid if you asked him. You shall not argue on Christmas Eve. It is a time of getting together and spending time as family. I am too looking forward for my Christmas gift. What did you ask for Christmas? I yearn for your safety and for you to love on another. I wish for you to never give up hope, love one another, and for forgiveness. Not a random day out of the year. Seriously, how do you guys enjoy this holiday! We just pretend to like them to make you feel better. Donnie always worked hard on his gifts, and he wanted his family to love it. We get to pray with each other as a family and plus, we get to eat a delicious meal! Is that what you like Leo? Well you know, all that food just makes you fat. And then you end up looking ugly. All that grease gives you pimples and makes your belly pop out. Leo just shook his head. It was fun to eat together as a family. Donnie and Leo begged Raph not to tell with their eyes. That Santa is real? Mikey nodded his head eagerly. And Master Splinter is the one who writes the notes wishing us a "Merry Christmas. You are to go to be this instance! Raph just glared at him and headed to his room. Finally, Mikey looked at Leo and Donnie. Does Santa really not exist? Donnie and Leo glanced at each other, and had a silent agreement. They would let Mikey figure it out for himself, just like they did. But at least he felt a little bit better. Do I eat too much on Christmas? Your just strong because you train so much and your just amazing that way. Donnie just stared at the ground, a wistful look in his eyes. Finally, Mikey spoke up. Master Splinter smiled at this. It warmed his heart how they were always there for each other. I just shared my opinion and told the truth. Dad always tells me not to lie, and I tell the truth and end up getting in trouble for it! I want to take a nap before we have to stay up late and party. Ghost can take many different forms, and so I decided to take the form of your younger brother, Donatello. Raph looked uncertain, and stuck his hand through the ghost. Surprisingly, it went right through it. Raph began to tremor, there was a real live ghost in his house, the scary stories he made his father tell him were true. You will get visited by two more ghost after me. The ghost of Christmas present and the ghost of Christmas future. I thought ghost were meant for Halloween. I have something to show you. He squinted his eyes, waiting for an impact, but none came. As he opened his eyes, he saw that they were back in the dojo, but it was different. They were all little kids again, at least five years old. You were all so happy. Now look what happened the next day on Christmas morning. I got my new comics! You said you wanted a new helmet like three weeks ago. But I really wanted a pet turtle. Could you come here for a moment? Bringing out the present behind his back with an enormous smile in his face, Mikey said "Open! You gave me a box. You got to open it Raphie! With an embarrassed look on his face, Raph slowly opened the box, and what he saw in there was enough to bring him tears of joy. It was a real live, light green, small turtle. Mikey actually got him a turtle! How did you get this? And then Mikey reminded us how bad you wanted a pet turtle. So we got you one. This is so awesome! The others nodded their heads, indicating they would also like to know what their new member of the family was called. Raph thought about it for a few minutes. The name needed to be just right. Raph turned away from the vision. This was too much to watch, the guilt just kept rising. No way was he getting reprimanded by a ghost known for his old toys and food. Then he snapped his fingers and Raph ended up in his room, alone. The ghost of Christmas past was gone. That ghost was getting on my last nerve. Suddenly, a pale figure that looked like Leo popped up. Or are you actually one of my brothers this time? Not like present as gift. Just hold me hand. The ghost dragged Raphael towards the kitchen, where his brothers were eating lunch. The ghost just nodded. Now be quiet and watch what is happening. You know, since were going to have this huge feast tonight. Leo and Donnie just looked at Mikey wistfully. As Mikey came back to the table, he noticed Donnie taking apart something. Donnie told his brothers.

Chapter 8 : Rudy: "Truth isn't truth"

Raph stuttered, looking over at Mikey who somehow managed a grin that pulled off both embarrassed and mischievous. "Don't give me that look, Mikey. This is serious."
