

DOWNLOAD PDF REGIMENTAL HISTORY OF THE 35TH ALABAMA INFANTRY, 1862-1865

Chapter 1 : The Alabama Brigade (American Civil War) - Wikipedia

Get this from a library! Regimental history of the 35th Alabama Infantry, [Leroy F Banning].

Heritage Books, reprint of original edition. Illustrations, maps, appendices, index, pages. Glimpses of Glory provides a moving experience of the human dimension of war. NEW copy, hardcover with dust jacket. Kent State University Press, Hardcover, issued without dust jacket. Photos, maps, bibliographic essay, index, pages. Hardcover with dust jacket. White Mane Books, Photographs, maps, notes, index, pages. Engineers built the roads and bridges that allowed the troops to move forward and their supplies to reach the front. When this force proved too small to handle all the building of works to support over , men in the field, two volunteer regiments from New York were organized and placed into what became the Volunteer Engineer Brigade. Includes special orders, orders that pertain to individuals only, and general orders which pertain to the entire brigade. Read little known details about: The 9th Heavy Artillery was a part of the 9th Corps. This story is cohesive and informative yet charming and romantic in a very personal way. A Diary of the 13th New York Artillery. Bibliography, index, pages. This unit participated in some famous battles Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Atlanta as well as numerous smaller engagements. Masses of papers generated by this unit offer candid comments on those battles as well as daily camp life and the personalities of many of the officers and men. This book comprises orders, reports, memos, personal letters, etc. Some of the most beautifully crafted letters by any soldier in the Civil War were written by William Wheeler, who served as captain of the 13th until his death in June of Until now, these letters were available only in a privately published collection printed in Few libraries have that volume, and many of the best historians of the Civil War have never seen the letters or even heard of Wheeler. Appendices round out this comprehensive work, providing information on unit service, officers, battles, a brief historical sketch of the unit, inscriptions on war monuments, and the eulogy for William Wheeler. The 21st New York Cavalry, Burd Street Press, The 79th New York Cameron Highlanders. White Mane Publishing Company, Photographs, maps, notes, bibliography, index. Colored Infantry Paradis, James M. Photographs, maps, tables, graphs, muster roll, notes, bibliography, index, pages. History of the "Sable Arm", the 6th Regt of U. Three of its members were winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor. Very slight crease on spine. Maps, photographs, appendices, company roster [Co. C, th Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteer Infantry], bibliography, index, pp. Benedict was one of thousands of young men who enlisted for the Union cause in the late summer of when the outcome of the Civil War was yet to be decided. But in addition to his duties as a soldier, Benedict also worked as a correspondent for his hometown newspaper, the Burlington Vermont Free Press. Letters of an Army Surgeon to his Family, Photograph, map, notes, bibliography, index, pages. Henry Matrau of the Iron Brigade. University of Nebraska Press, Preface, Letters, Epilogue, section of thirty seperate biographies of persons mentioned in the letters, Notes, Index. He took part in many of the major engagements of the war: In his letters, Matrau describes camp life: Photographs, maps, chronology, regimental rollcall, notes, bibliography, index, pages. History of the Union 2nd Division, VI Corps, from its formation during the Peninsular Campaign of through the following campaigns: The 17th Regiment was organized September 5, , at Montgomery, Alabama. The 17th was mustered into the Confederate Army with a full regiment of ten companies and approximately men. This book explores personal aspects of the soldiers as well as their reactions to events surrounding them. Much of their story is told using their own words, where available, from diaries, letters and military reports. Descriptions of the following military assignments are included: The appendices list a roster for the entire regiment with over 2, names, from each of the ten companies, listed in alphabetical order. Individual entries in the roster include: Date and location of birth, death and burial are listed, if known. A medical glossary and casualty lists can also be found in the appendices. Heritage Books, The regiment was composed of ten companies of men, recruited from eight central Alabama counties: Some of the men were from plantations in the wealthy "black belt" region of Alabama, while others were from poor "one mule farms" from the hill country of the state. This work includes the diary of Captain Isaac McAdory, who recorded the day-by-day activities of the regiment and its participation in seven major battles and numerous skirmishes from the time of its organization in until its surrender in One of the strangest occurrences in modern military history was to fall upon the regiment when General Braxton Bragg had two of its members assassinated by firing squad for going AWOL. By the time the Civil War ended, men from this regiment had been hospitalized, had become prisoners of war, and had lost their lives in battle. The first third of the book gives the background and organizational history of the regiment and a photograph of its battle flag of silk, designed by the renowned artist Nicola Marshall, who also designed the original Confederate battle flag. An everyname index completes the work. As a historian and genealogist, James Walker has presented a work from which researchers, historians and Civil War buffs will greatly benefit, while getting to know the remarkable men, those gallant men, of the 28th Alabama Confederate Infantry Regiment. Maps, charts, pages. The unit was heavily involved with the campaign to hold Mississippi, but also fought in Alabama, at Baton Rouge, Louisiana, and the many battles to defend Atlanta, Georgia. The battle at "bloody" Franklin, Tennessee, saw the virtual destruction of the unit. An alphabetical list of the men known to have served in the regiment is included, providing biographical material, rank and details from medical, prisoner of war and death records. It was one of the few confederate regiments that lost more men to the musket than to disease during the Civil War. Complete muster rolls are included. When injuries kept him from active combat, he served the regiment in the demanding and dangerous role of teamster, driving the heavy wagons filled with crucial weapons and supplies. Heritage Books, Illustrations, pages. Upon capture, they were sent as prisoners to Ship Island near Biloxi, Mississippi. Of these young men, many being 17 or younger, almost all survived the war, which makes their records interesting and important to researchers. This work contains muster rolls and rosters, and service records for the 2nd Alabama Regiment Reserves, which was organized in August Also included are some records for the 89th, 94th and 95th Alabama Militias. This book contains illustrations of the U. Photographs, appendices, notes, index, pages. They fought hard in most major battles of the war, including Bull Run and Gettysburg, enduring heartbreaking losses and finally, at Appomattox, witnessing their ultimate defeat. The magnificent product of meticulous research, Warren Wilkinson and Steven E. Based on personal accounts, diaries, letters, and other primary sources, A Scythe of Fire is the history of the Eighth Georgia as experienced by those who carried its standard into battle: Heritage Books, Index, pages. The story is constructed around quotations from letters written home from soldiers of Company A of this regiment to summarize the actions of the 14th Georgia in the complete period of fighting from the days immediately following 1st Manassas right up through the end at Appomattox Courthouse. The story was initiated to provide a history of this regiment to the descendents of one of its veterans-Private Aaron Jackson Dewberry of Monroe, Georgia. It evolved into a personal story including all of the veterans from Company A in this regiment. The narrative includes an individual accounting of each of the veterans of the company and will be of especial interest to all of their descendents. The narrative and action is placed in the Virginia campaigns of Robert E. From the narrative and letters quoted, the reader will be placed at thirteen battlefield sites including detailed action accounts of Chancellorsville, The Wilderness, Spotsylvania, Petersburg, and Appomattox. A History and Roster of the Fifteenth Georgia. Photographs, maps, charts, index, pages. First and primarily, the book is intended to accurately reflect the composition, strength, and disposition of the brigade, chronologically, throughout the Civil War, from its inception to its ultimate demobilization. Secondly, the narrative is filled with excerpts from diaries, journals, correspondence, and reports from the officers and men that wrote them. These personal reflections are intended to provide the reader with an intimate and uniquely southern perspective of the American Civil War. A detailed analysis of the brigade at the regimental and company level provides an accurate graphic and historical representation, and the roster of the regiment highlights each soldier individually. More than half the regiment did not survive the war; however, their legacy survived and they are forever an integral part of our American heritage. The Stuart Horse Artillery Battalion. Photographs, maps, appendices, bibliography, index.

DOWNLOAD PDF REGIMENTAL HISTORY OF THE 35TH ALABAMA INFANTRY, 1862-1865

DOWNLOAD PDF REGIMENTAL HISTORY OF THE 35TH ALABAMA INFANTRY, 1862-1865

Chapter 2 : Bibliography - AL 35th Infantry Regiment

*Regimental History of the 35th Alabama Infantry, [Leroy F. Banning] on theinnatdunvilla.com FREE shipping on qualifying offers. This book, written in diary format, follows this Confederate Civil War unit from its creation around a nucleus of the cadets from the LaGrange Military Academy in LaGrange.*

Service history[edit] The Alabama Brigade was established on 19 January ; consisting of five Alabama infantry regiments that were collected from three different brigades. The Alabama brigade was reorganized a final time in January ; and the 15th, 47th, and 48th Alabama regiments were added. Commanded by Evander M. Law it was a part of Gen. It was assigned to the division of Maj. It participated in the Suffolk Campaign and had a prominent role in the Battle of Gettysburg. Afterwards the division was, for a brief period in , transferred to the Army of Tennessee where it fought in the Battle of Chickamauga and the Knoxville Campaign before being transferred back to the east in It participated in the Battle of the Wilderness and continued to serve in the Appomattox Campaign that resulted in Confederate Gen. Along with the rest of the Army of Northern Virginia, the brigade was paroled and its surviving members returned to Alabama as civilians. The original commander was Col. Bee who commanded the 3rd brigade at First Manassas , where Bee and the new regimental commander, Egbert I. Jones, were killed in action. Evander McIvor Law was then promoted and became Colonel of the regiment. Law was promoted to Brigadier General on October 3, The regiment later fought passionately in all battles of the brigade. After being sent immediately to Virginia, it was placed in a brigade under General George B. Oates , who after the war became the Governor of Alabama. Alexander Lowther later replaced Oates as commander in Over the course of the war, men had been in this regiment at some point but only survived to surrender at Appomattox. Oliver resigned 11 August and was replaced by James W. Jackson, who was promoted to Colonel. After being decimated at Sharpsburg on 17 September and again at Fredericksburg on 13 December , it was transferred into the Alabama Brigade in January The first commander of the regiment was Col. James Lawrence Sheffield, who resigned in the fall of Wiggington, who had been promoted to the rank of Major in the fall of , was the commander of the 48th at their surrender at Appomattox. It was decimated at Fredericksburg , which was fought 11â€”15 December During and Law was wounded numerous times and acted as division commander on several occasions. Law was transferred to the Cavalry Corps of the Army of Northern Virginia where he became a division commander. Risen from Private to Colonel of the 44th Alabama within 5 months; he was finally promoted to Brigadier General on February 21, He commanded the brigade until its surrender at Appomattox. Archived from the original on

Chapter 3 : Alabama Civil War Unit Bibliography - Eclectic Projects

35th Alabama Infantry Regiment Example of a "Breckenridge" Flag belonging to the 4th Kentucky Cavalry. Example of the 2nd National Flag Variant used by Scott's Brigade, Loring's Corps.

Chapter 4 : List of Alabama Civil War Confederate units - Wikipedia

Regimental History of the 35th Alabama Infantry, - Leroy F. Banning. This book, written in diary format, follows this Confederate Civil War unit from its creation around a nucleus of the cadets from the LaGrange Military Academy in LaGrange, Alabama, on March 1, , to its surrender at Greensboro, North Carolina, on May 2,

Chapter 5 : ALABAMA: REGIMENTAL HISTORY OF THE 35TH ALABAMA INFANTRY, (Banning) - Ancestry

Details about Regimental History of the 35th Alabama Infantry, (Paperback or Softbac Be the first to write a review.

DOWNLOAD PDF REGIMENTAL HISTORY OF THE 35TH ALABAMA INFANTRY, 1862-1865

Regimental History of the 35th Alabama Infantry, (Paperback or Softbac.

Chapter 6 : Civil War Books: Unit Histories, Union & Confederate

Note: Citations are based on reference standards. However, formatting rules can vary widely between applications and fields of interest or study. The specific requirements or preferences of your reviewing publisher, classroom teacher, institution or organization should be applied.