By default, in the layout that the chapter is based on, the text box that contains the placeholder chapter title (Chapter) has metadata inserted that tells iBooks Author to substitute the current chapter name for that metadata's placeholder text.

Most of us think of a digital book as being a simple digital copy of a book that has been published in print. You can send emails and link to web sites from an ePub. You can search the web or search Wikipedia from inside the book. An ePub can have a Table of Contents listing chapters, and an Index at the back of the book, all of which are actively linked. You can change the size of the font and even change the font style. Purchase a book once, store it in iCloud and have it on a number of mobile devices. All you need to do to access all of these abilities is to download the free iBook app to your iPhone, iTouch and iPad. When you launch the iBooks App on your mobile device, the Book Library will open and you will be presented with the iBooks bookshelf. There are icons top left and top right of the Library. The iBooks Store runs through your iTunes account. If you purchase a book from the iTunes iBook Store on your mobile device, the book will be downloaded directly to your device. If you purchase the book on your Mac desktop or laptop, you can sync it over to your mobile device by attaching your device to your Mac. In the iBooks Store you can do a search or search through Categories. When you are ready to exit the iBooks Store, tap on the Library icon, below red box. Click on the Collections icon to choose between the two. The PDF Library is shown below. Top right of the iBook app are three icons. The first two control the way that the books and PDFs are displayed. The middle icon three white horizontal lines will show the books in Icon List view, shown below. When in Icon List view, there are four different ways to sort the list of books. Features When you open a book from the book shelf for the first time, the book will open to the first chapter. When you open a book for the first time and tap Resume, nothing will happen. Tapping on any of the chapters in the Table of Contents will take you to the start of that chapter. When reading in the book, if at any time you tap in the upper margin of a page, a number of icons will appear. Top of the page on the left are two icons, the Library icon, red arrow below, which takes you back to the iBooks Library where all of your books are displayed on a book shelf. When you tap this icon you are offered the chance to increase or decrease the size of the text that is displayed on the page, as well as change the font style. This search feature is very powerful as you can search the content of the entire book for a specific word or phrase. Tapping this icon will bookmark the page. Additionally the book mark will show up in the Table of Contents in the Bookmark tab. If there are pages that you will want to revisit, bookmarking the page is a great shortcut. Tap on Font to display the font choices. A new selection of font styles has been added. Theme offers three options. Normal, which is the default. Sepia which gives the text a warm Sepia tone and the third, Night, meant for reading in the dark. Full screen view shows the page without any of the graphic shadowing of the pages. Search, Bookmarks and Notes Tapping the magnifying glass, the Search icon, opens a search field and the keyboard. You can search for any word in the ePub. Tap any one of the search results and you will be taken to that page. If that result is not the one you are looking for, simply tap the Search magnifying glass and you will be returned to the Search results list. The last icon on the far right is the bookmark icon. When you return to the Table of Contents and tap the Bookmarks tab, red box below, all of your bookmarks will be listed. Tap on any bookmark to go to that page. You can have any number of bookmarks. If you want to remove a bookmark, go to the page that is bookmarked, tap the red bookmark, it will disappear from the page and from the Bookmark tab in the Table of Contents. If you touch and hold on a word for a few seconds, a magnifying glass appears showing the word that you touched. When you remove your finger from the screen a features bar appears. Aside from the definition of the word, you can also search the Web and Wikipedia for that word. Select the text you want to work with by touching each of the two blue dots and dragging the dots to include the text you want to highlight. Tap Highlight and a new set of options appear. In the features bar, starting from the left, are five different colors that you can choose from to highlight your text. The color of the highlight that you have selected is circled by an orange ring, shown below, in this case the color blue. Just to the right of the highlight color options is a white circle with a red line through it, red circle below. Tap this icon to deselect the word or words and cancel the features set. The last item is a right facing triangle, red box below. Tapping this opens another features bar, more about this later in the article. You can type in a description of the text that you have selected. On a page where you have colored text, you can tell the difference between texts that has been highlighted and Notes, because a Note will have a small Note icon in the page margine, red box below. If you tap the Note icon small square the note that you typed will appear on screen. Tap in the note text box, red box below, and the keyboard will appear where you can change the text of your note. If you wish to modify or remove a note completely, tap the colored text of the note and the feature bar will appear. You can change the highlight color, delete a highlight color or remove the note completely. The last icon on the right, a white right facing triangle, red box below. Tap away from the selected word or words to exit the feature mode. Active Links iBooks can sport a number of different types of active links. At the back of the book is an Index. Chapter 16 - Compound Clips is shown below. Video and Audio One thing that I find particularly exciting about the ePub format is that you can embed video clips and audio files right into the ePub pages, which will play right on the page. As shown below, there is a video embedded in the page. Tap the play button. The video starts to play. You can also pinch out to play in full screen mode. When the video is finished playing, you will be returned to the ePub page. If you are viewing your ePub on an iPhone or iPod Touch, when you tap the play button, the movie will automatically play in full screen mode. Good quality video will look stunning. Embedded audio is shown below, tap to play. The embedded audio icon could be a bit more interesting, but it does work properly. Getting iBooks onto your mobile device You will need to have the free iBooks app installed on your mobile device before you download an ePub. From your mobile device, go to the Apps Store, search for iBooks and download. The iBooks Book Store on my iPad is shown below. After the book has been downloaded, you can sync the book over to your mobile device via USB. The Mac iTunes Book Store is shown below. While you can purchase iBooks from Apple or even Amazon, there are a number of ePub books out there that you can obtain from sources other than a Book Store. There is also the option to download directly to your mobile device over the air, WiFi and 3G. To download directly to your iPad, iPhone and the iPod Touch. Double click on the file to un-zip it, however, your Browser may automatically un-zip the file for you. In either case you will have a file with a plain white icon, with no extension. When you see a blue box around the Library section, release your mouse button. There are a number of different companies that sell digital books, each one using their own proprietary format; Apple, Amazon and Sony for example. There are a number of other web sites that offer free books. And by the way, you can listen to music while you read your books.

Chapter 4 : Apple Books - Wikipedia

While you can listen to your transferred content in the iBooks app, we recommend downloading the Audible app on your iOS device because it includes several features unavailable in the iBooks app. Below you will find information on chapter navigation.

Here, then, are five tips to master iBooks on your iOS device of choice. If you need to read books for class or your own learning objectives, you can use iBooks to highlight words or passages, search the text for specific words or phrases, and make notes that appear in the margins as little colored sticky notes. Using these tools could help you become a much more organized studier, letting you go back to a passage in a book to remember the important things with a couple of taps. When reading an iBook, tap and hold on any text you want to select, like you would in Safari or Pages. The pop up bar will change to give you new highlighting options, which include changing the color of the highlight or adding a note, itself in the same color as the highlight. If you tap away from the selected word and lose the pop up menu, simply tap the colored highlighted area again to bring the highlight menu up again. Tap the notecard icon, helpfully the same color as the text you just highlighted, and type in any notes you want in the resulting pop up note card. If you want to search for a given word in the text, tap and hold on a word in the body of the book and select Search from the pop up menu. You can also tap the magnifying glass icon in the upper right of the screen and type in a search term or text string. If you want to search the web, or Wikipedia, there are buttons at the bottom of the search window to send that term out to Safari. Have you purchased way too many Star Wars novels, only to find them crowding out your beloved Jane Eyre collection? First of all, decide what categories make the most sense for you, based on the books you own. Should you categorize by genre, subject matter, have a list of favorites? The default categories are Books and PDFs. You can be more creative than that, right? Of course you can. Return to your shelves and tap the Edit button in the upper right hand corner of the iPad screen, or the upper left hand corner of your iPhone or iPod Touch screen. When reading an iBook on your iPad or iPhone, you typically tap the right side of the page to go forward, and tap the left side of the page to go backward, right? If you want to skip to a different part of the iBook, you can tap on the table of contents button in the upper left and tap to the chapter you want to go to. How do you quickly navigate more than one page forward or backward, though? Tap the little brown rectangle that denotes the current page, and hold your finger down. Now slide your finger right to riffle forward through the book, and to the left to riffle backwards through the book. Stop when you get to the chapter or page you want, and iBooks will open to that page, letting you read from that spot. Now you can skip taping the page turn over and over to get farther along in the book, as well as sticking to the start of the various chapters. Just riffle your way to the part you want to read, and all will be well. Access Free Sample iBooks With iBooks on your iPhone or iPad or iPad mini, my favorite reading device, you can download electronic books from the convenient privacy of your very own iOS device. A real bookstore, though, lets you browse through the books before you buy them. Heck, you can pick one off the shelf, riffle through the pages, and even gasp! This will take you to the wonderful world of the iBooks store, which is like iTunes or the App Store for books. Tap on the cover of the book there in the iBooks store, and it will pop up a detail page. Right next to the button with the price on it? Tap that button and a lovely little sample will download to your iPhone or iPad, ready for you to look through. It will even have a cute little red Sample sash diagonally across the right top corner of the book cover on your iBooks shelf, so you can be sure not to mistake it for a full length book. Tap the cover to read the sample iBook as you would any other title in your collection. Oddly, I saw a ton of the same book, over and over, sitting on the shelves. For some reason, this only happens on my iPad mini. My iPhone only shows one copy of each book, even when I select the same Purchased Books option. Same with my iPad 3. Hopefully, this is not happening to you, and if it is, Apple will fix it soon.

A book is made up of chapters. Within each chapter, you can add sections—for example, to divide the content of a chapter into topics, or to set apart special types of content, like lessons, activities, and case studies. In an ePub template, each chapter can contain only sections—each of which is one scrolling page that displays all the content. In a landscape or portrait template, each chapter can contain individual pages, as well as sections. As you add content, new pages are added as needed or you can add pages first. If you switch a landscape template to scrolling view, each section has one scrolling page that displays all the content. You can reorder sections and chapters at any time by dragging them in the Book pane shown below. The Book pane shown below is from a landscape template. Although the Book pane in an ePub template shows an outline of the book instead of page thumbnails, you can still reorder chapters and sections by dragging them. Add a chapter or a section In the Book pane shown above, select the chapter after which you want the new chapter to appear or the chapter you want to add the section to. Click a chapter or section title and do any of the following: Add a chapter or section title: Change the prefix and number displayed: Replace a section title with a chapter or book title, or a chapter title with a book title: On the book page, triple-click the chapter or section title and choose an option from the Title pop-up menu. You can also add a chapter or section by duplicating one. To optimize the viewing experience, create more smaller chapters rather than fewer larger chapters. Add a new page Note: In the Book pane of a landscape or portrait template, select the chapter or section you want to add pages to. You can also add a new page by Control-clicking a page in the Book pane and choosing Insert Page from the shortcut menu. The new page uses the default layout for the chapter or section. Reorder chapters or sections In the Book pane, do any of the following: Change the order of chapters: Change the order of sections: Drag a section to a new location in the chapter, or to another chapter. Chapters and sections are automatically renumbered as you move them. Delete a chapter, section, or page In the Book pane, select the chapter, section, or page you want to delete, and press Delete.
