

Chapter 1 : Black Pudding Stick, Real Lancashire Black Pudding Company - Albert Matthews

Friends of Real Lancashire are concerned to promote the true identity of our county which has been extremely confused in the minds of some people, especially those working in the broadcasting and newspaper industries, since the local government reorganisation of

The historic borders of Lancashire. The current local government boundary of Lancashire was established in by the Local Government Act Manchester and the rest of south east Lancashire became part of Greater Manchester ; Liverpool and the rest of south west Lancashire became part of Merseyside ; Furness became part of Cumbria ; and Warrington and Widnes became part of Cheshire. Unfortunately, the media refer to these administrative areas all too frequently and ignore the fact that places such as Barrow-in-Furness , Liverpool, Manchester, Warrington, etc. They have also been widely adopted by the media as geographical designations, despite that many within the new counties continue to regard themselves as Lancastrians. The area under the control of Lancashire County Council , or shire county , became even smaller in when Blackpool and Blackburn with Darwen became unitary authorities. Aims[ edit ] FORL has the following aims: The restoration of the historic boundaries of the Lancashire ceremonial county with the Lord-Lieutenant of Lancashire covering everywhere within the historic borders. Road signs to mark the historic boundaries with Cheshire , Yorkshire , Westmorland and Cumberland. The historic boundaries to be shown on Ordnance Survey and other maps rather than the current administrative boundaries. Destruction of the occupied counties of Greater Manchester and Merseyside and the return to one glorious united Lancashire. The group also campaigns to have public bodies named in accordance with historic rather than contemporary county names e. NHS ambulance authority reforms. However, they do not propose any changes to administrative boundaries. In response to other suggestions of restoring former boundaries, the Government has commented that although it has no plans to restore the historic borders of counties, boundary changes which have occurred need not affect loyalties. It was put on display at County Hall. As part of their flexible addressing policy, anyone may now include "Lancashire" as part of their address. Where a county is provided however, it will be ignored and to this end, an alias file supplement to the Postcode Address File cross references county and other postally-not-required information to the correct postal address. Lancashire Day paralleled the similar Yorkshire Day , first held in At formal events and Lancastrian military events " Long live our noble Duke ", an unofficial Lancashire variant of " God save the Queen " is played in respect for the Duke of Lancaster , the Queen. Lancashire Day has been widely publicised, including mentions on the BBC website.

Chapter 2 : The Real Lancashire Black Pudding Company Limited in Rossendale, BB4 5EN

Lancashire is smaller than its historical extent following a major reform of local government. In , the administrative county of Lancashire was created, covering the historic county except for the county boroughs such as Blackburn, Burnley, Barrow-in-Furness, Preston, Wigan, Liverpool and Manchester.

During Roman times the area was part of the Brigantes tribal area in the military zone of Roman Britain. In the centuries after the Roman withdrawal in AD the northern parts of the county probably formed part of the Brythonic kingdom of Rheged , a successor entity to the Brigantes tribe. During the mid-8th century, the area was incorporated into the Anglo-Saxon Kingdom of Northumbria , which became a part of England in the 10th century. Modern history[ edit ] The historic county palatine boundaries in red and the ceremonial county in green Lancashire is smaller than its historical extent following a major reform of local government. It did not cover the western part of Todmorden , where the ancient border between Lancashire and Yorkshire passes through the middle of the town. During the 20th century, the county became increasingly urbanised, particularly the southern part. Helens and Wigan were added Warrington , Blackpool and Southport The county boroughs also had many boundary extensions. The borders around the Manchester area were particularly complicated, with narrow protrusions of the administrative county between the county boroughs â€” Lees urban district formed a detached part of the administrative county, between Oldham county borough and the West Riding of Yorkshire. On 1 April , under the Local Government Act , the administrative county was abolished, as were the county boroughs. The urbanised southern part largely became part of two metropolitan counties , Merseyside and Greater Manchester. Helens and Sefton were included in Merseyside. The Wars of the Roses tradition continued with Lancaster using the red rose symbol and York the white. Pressure groups, including Friends of Real Lancashire and the Association of British Counties advocate the use of the historical boundaries of Lancashire for ceremonial and cultural purposes. Geology of Lancashire Topography of Lancashire. Rivers in Lancashire include the Ribble, Wyre and Lune. The Irwell has its source in Lancashire. Further north is Morecambe Bay. Apart from the coastal resorts, these areas are largely rural with the land devoted to vegetable crops. To the east of the county are upland areas leading to the Pennines. Much of the lowland in this area is devoted to dairy farming and cheesemaking, whereas the higher ground is more suitable for sheep, and the highest ground is uncultivated moorland. The valleys of the River Ribble and its tributary the Calder form a large gap to the west of the Pennines, overlooked by Pendle Hill. Most of the larger Lancashire towns are in these valleys South of the Ribble are the West Pennine Moors and the Forest of Rossendale where former cotton mill towns are in deep valleys. North West Green Belt Lancashire contains green belt interspersed throughout the county, covering much of the southern districts and towns throughout the Ribble Valley , West Lancashire and The Fylde coastal plains to prevent convergence with the nearby Merseyside and Greater Manchester conurbations. Further pockets control the expansion of Lancaster, and surround the Blackpool urban area, as part of the western edge of the North West Green Belt. It was first drawn up from the s.

Chapter 3 : Home - The Real Lancashire Black Pudding Co

Lovely to meet Philip Walsh, Chairman of Friends of Real Lancashire. He is currently walking our mile County Boundary in aid of the North West Air Ambulance and I'm told he has already made it to Liverpool!

Another tribe named the Setantii has also been hypothesized based on the name of a Roman era port near the mouth of the River Wyre, called Portus Setantiorum, and they were possibly also Brigantes, if they existed. The Anglo-Saxon Chronicle records that in 870, Edward the Elder brought an army to Mercia and ordered the repair of the defences at Manchester in Northumbria. The entries are brief, and unusually intermix the Anglo-Saxon hide with the Danelaw carucate as units of measurement. The entries for the north, consist of little more than lists of manors. Amounderness appears as a district, apparently stretching inland to the River Hodder, the hundred is thought to have been created shortly afterwards. This contiguous area of relatively undeveloped highland was administered by men such as Ivo de Taillebois, and a local aristocracy which still included a relatively significant amount of Anglo-Saxons. This is proposed by authors such as William Farrer to be the reason why the first Barons of Kendal used the surname "de Lancaster" despite Kendal not becoming a permanent part of the later developed county of Lancaster. However, in 1173 he supported Robert Curthose in a failed rebellion against Henry I and his English holdings were forfeit. The Lonsdale Hundred was created sometime during the late 11th or early 12th centuries, certainly by Henry de Lacy the Earl of Lincoln at this time held the baronies of Clitheroe, Penwortham and Halton and the lordships of Rochdale and Bury in this area. He also appointed the Sheriff, coroners and other local officers including an escheator. He also appointed a Chancellor and established a Chancery to issue the writs required for the administration of the Palatinate. Before his death in 1189, the king also granted the palatine powers to his son. In 1200 John obtained an extension of this grant from Richard II, enabling his male heirs to inherit control of the palatinate. The county was divided into the six hundreds of Amounderness, [43] Blackburn, [44] [45] Leyland, [46] Lonsdale, [34] Salford, [47] [48] and West Derby. Each hundred was sub-divided into parishes. As the parishes covered relatively large areas, they were further divided into townships that were more similar in size to parishes in counties in the south of England. Outside of the administration of the hundreds were the boroughs. In 1399 Edward IV decreed that the county palatine should become part of the Duchy of Lancaster and from the offices of Chancellor of the Duchy and Chancellor of the Palatinate were held by the same person. The administrative centre moved to London, while Lancaster remained the legal centre.

Chapter 4 : The Real Lancashire Black Pudding Company | VentureRadar

The beauty, heritage and places to visit on the southern Lake District coast around Morecambe Bay. This is a short video which I put together in four days so that I could enter Morecambe Bay Movie Makers Annual Open competition

Chapter 5 : Find Real Estate, Homes for Sale, Apartments & Houses for Rent - theinnatdunvilla.com®

Andrew Holt, proprietor of The Real Lancashire Black Pudding Company since 2015, identified an opportunity in the market to produce black puddings on a wholesale basis, initially supplying mainly wholesale butchers and, more recently, the food sector and multiple retailers.

Chapter 6 : Friends of REAL Lancashire - Blackburn Rovers - Ewood Park

The Friends of Real Lancashire are concerned to promote what they view as, the true boundaries of the county, namely those of the County Palatine of theinnatdunvilla.com current local government boundary of Lancashire was established in by the Local Government Act

Chapter 7 : Friends of Real Lancashire - Wikipedia

The Real Lancashire Black Pudding Company is a family business dedicated to producing the highest quality theinnatdunvilla.com has been proven by the awards we have won over the past 21 years.

Chapter 8 : History of Lancashire - Wikipedia

The Worlds First and only Vegan Black Pudding. Developed to mimic the taste of a black pudding but completely Vegan. Recognised by the Vegetarian society and voted their best breakfast product.

Chapter 9 : Lancashire - Wikipedia

Real Lancashire Black Pudding Company is a family business dedicated to producing the highest quality products. This has been proven by the awards we have won over the past 21 years. We are the highest decorated Black Pudding Makers in Great Britain.