

Chapter 1 : Joni Ames: "THE WEEPING OF THE HOLY SPIRIT"

Your article, "The Sound of Weeping" goes to the core of why we humans do what we do. It's the little things-the negative things that we do that cause the weeping. Love the words from (1 Peter NKJV)!

This plaint for solo voice is the earliest surviving piece of music about Becket. Since it mentions his exile in France, it must date from the period , though it was not copied into its only extant manuscript source until much later. A voice was heard in Ramah, weeping and loud lamentation, Rachel weeping for her children; she refused to be comforted, because they are no more. Thus says the LORD: Rachel is weeping for her children; she refuses to be comforted for her children, because they are no more. So this is the basis for In Rama sonat gemitus, referring to Thomas Becket. I could have realized what Matthew was doing a bit sooner by simply reading the verse prior to Matthew 2: That leaves us with the original Rachel; did she actually weep over her children? There seem to be at least two takes on this. One thought is that Genesis When Rachel saw that she bore Jacob no children, she envied her sister. The commentators often group several of these things together, as well. It is also true that, again according to Jeremiah The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord after Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had let him go from Ramah, when he took him bound in chains along with all the captives of Jerusalem and Judah who were being exiled to Babylon. The Lord has brought it about, and has done as he said. Because you sinned against the Lord and did not obey his voice, this thing has come upon you. Now, behold, I release you today from the chains on your hands. If it seems good to you to come with me to Babylon, come, and I will look after you well, but if it seems wrong to you to come with me to Babylon, do not come. See, the whole land is before you; go wherever you think it good and right to go. Some commentators have also pointed out that the meaning of the word "Ramah" is "high place."

Late 30's male screaming and weeping in terror, and pain while being eaten alive.

Are you convinced yet? If you have a specific time that you normally feed your guinea pig, you will usually hear them wheek loudest at this time of the day. Also, if they see you approaching them with food, expect them to wheek out of excitement in anticipation. How do we know this? So through domestication, wheeking was learned. Purring This occurs when the guinea pig is vocalizing a low, constant sound. No, not like a cat. See the video below to hear for yourself. Purring is usually associated with being content or happy. You will most likely hear it when you are gently petting your pig. However, sometimes when they hear a startling noise or suddenly feel threatened, they will vocalize this same noise but in short spurts. Rumble The rumble is similar to the purr, except with a vibrating effect and lower pitch. Owners with a single cavy will not likely get the opportunity to hear this; however, if you have a male and female, you may hear this frequently. The male uses this sound when he is wooing the female to mate. He will start to wiggle his hips and walk around the female in a seemingly arbitrary pattern. And if you ever get the chance to see it, just leave them alone and appreciate this natural occurrence. This can also happen when there is suddenly a drastic change in their environment. If you hear the growl from your guinea pig, just start petting them very gently to calm him or her down. In no time, the growl may turn into a delighted purr. Sometimes, the growling can be directed towards another guinea pig in the cage. Teeth Chattering This is when your guinea pig releases a rapid streak of squeaks. And, it usually means that they are angry, unhappy or agitated at a certain situation. Keep doing this until the chattering eventually goes away. But if you plan to raise two males, chattering will without a doubt happen as they try to figure out some sort of cage dominance. Just try your best to keep them from fighting, since they have to eventually learn to co-exist with one another. Now, this is a noise that you may or may not hear your guinea pigs make. As for some reason, only certain ones will make such a sound. Like the purr, chutting happens when your guinea pig is relaxed, happy or content. Keep in mind, some guinea pigs live their whole lives only purring no chutting when they feel these happy emotions. Sit back and take a moment to appreciate this sound not too many owners get to hear. It usually means your guinea pig is sensing immediate danger or is feeling pain and discomfort. But it does happen. For example, if one of your guinea pigs bites another, you will likely hear a shriek. They will eventually get used to the vet and stop shrieking if you go frequently enough. This noise is vocalized when the piggy is being disturbed or bothered. If you or a fellow cage mate interrupts his or her nap, you may hear this noise. Just step away, and let them be. For example, sometimes when I hold and pet my silkie cavy, she would whine to tell me she wants to roam free. None of these are exclusive to a certain species. There have also been several cases of guinea pig noises not on this list, although it is very rare. Several owners have even claimed to hear them chirping a melody like a bird. Remember, communication is key to raising a healthy little piggy. If you are a guinea pig owner like myself, I strongly urge you to take some time to learn these guinea pig sounds and understand their meaning.

Have you ever conducted a private survey of the human ear? It is a fascinating experience. It's an interesting way to pass the time while waiting for your appointment in a doctor's office, or for your mate to finish some shopping, or for a plane to arrive at the terminal, or if you are sitting in a meeting that begins to drag.

You may purchase them directly from this email, or visit our online store at www. Recently, many people have contacted me to pray for them because they are "weeping. Some have even had thoughts like, "There is no hope! You are not feeling this for yourself. You are standing in the gap. Much of it may be for the current situation in Israel, or for the victims of coming storms similar to Katrina, tsunamis, earthquakes, wars, or other catastrophes and items of intercession--whether personal, national, or corporate Body of Christ issues. Do NOT ignore this, nor think that you are "losing it" or that it is just the "blues. We must not let the enemy defile it by calling it "depression," or by any other name. We also must not defile it ourselves by "turning it off" or turning it inward. To do so would be to harden our hearts to what the Spirit is saying, which would deeply grieve Him, as well as reverse its intended use and bear no fruit. I am pained in my very heart! However, we must remember, " We must turn TO it and not from it. We must not be ashamed of the weeping that He desires to cry out through us! Today if you will hear His voice, do not harden your hearts For we do not know what we should pray for as we ought, but the Spirit Himself makes intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered. Now He who searches the hearts knows what the mind of the Spirit is, because He makes intercession for the saints according to the will of God. Grab your Kleenex and "go with it! Be led by the Holy Spirit. In whatever way He desires for you to pray, "pray it through! We just need to "let go and let God! Weeping may very well and most likely occur, when we are all alone. It is a time to let the "rain" of the Holy Spirit "reign! In this time when so many have serious needs, let us heed the voice of the Spirit to "pray it through.
