Benton Wesley "Federal Bureau of Investigation profiler. Pete Marino "Detective Lieutenant in the Richmond Police Department Nicholas Grueman "Lawyer, advocate for the abolition of capital punishment, deeming it "cruel and unusual. Is into drugs and a party-lifestyle. Being bribed by Frank Donahue to tamper with evidence. Temple Brooks Gault "The killer of the victims in the book. Uses the alias Hilton Sullivan. Being described by Benton Wesley as being "off the charts. If something strikes his fancy, he just does it. He highlights it himself. Victims[ edit ] Eddie Heath "year-old boy who was murdered in a manner similar to Robyn Naismith years before. He had a single gunshot wound to his head, which he did not immediately die of. He was found naked with his back propped against a dumpster in a back alley. It was alleged he was abducted and killed while he was on the way home from a grocery shop. Jennifer Deighton "When discovered in the car, originally thought to be a suicide. A hose was hooked up to the exhaust pipe. However, during the postmortem autopsy, her cause of death was asphyxiation. Was being bribed by Ben Stevens. Did so because of personal financial trouble. He released an inmate, because he "needed some dirty work done. So he selected an inmate to be his personal operative and set the animal loose. Was putting up Temple Gault at her place. She was killed with a single gunshot wound to her head, at her home by Ronnie Joe Waddell. She was naked, with her back propped against the television. Bite marks were present on her body. Sentenced to death by electrocution in the beginning of the book. The hunt for a killer and hope for glory Awards and nominations[ edit ].
